DAMAGE — A tree lies across a house in Fairfax after being toppled by high winds last night. The roof of the house, at 6 San Gabriel Drive, was damaged and a window broken by the crash. Falling branches and trees were the cause of most of the problems from the storm, including innumerable power failures.

Nixon To Give Up Watergate Tapes

Decision Comes In Sirica Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon gave up today his fight to keep his Watergate tapes secret and agreed to turn them over for judicial review, as ordered by a federal judge.

The President's constitutional lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, told U.S. District Judge John F. Sirica that the President as late as yesterday had not intended to surrender his tapes but had changed his mind.

"There would have been those who would have said the President was defying the law," Wright said in Sirica's hushed courtroom. "But this president does not defy the law."

Wright told Sirica that Nixon had hoped that the proposed compromise he had announced Friday night seeking to avert a constitutional crisis over the tapes issue would have satisfied two court orders that he make the tapes available to Sirica for screening for the Watergate grand jury.

"We had hoped that this kind of solution would end the constitutional crisis," Wright said. "But events over the weekend made it very apparent that it would not."

The "events" to which Wright referred was a furor — including efforts by some congressmen to start impeachment proceedings against Nixon —after Nixon fired Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor.

The result was the resignation of Elliot L. Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus as attorney general and the ouster of deputy attorney general, respectively, after they refused to carry out Nixon's order to fire Cox.

Sirica said that he was "very happy" over the President's decision to comply with his original order, issued Aug. 29, to turn the tapes over to him for screening.

Sirica asked Wright whether he could give the court some idea of the time that would be needed to produce the tapes and other documents for the judge to examine privately.

Wright replied, "It will be done as expeditiously as possible."

Wright said it could be only "a matter of a few days."

In his Aug. 29 order, Sirica directed Nixon to surrender the tapes "forthwith for the court to examine" privately before deciding if they should be given over to the grand jury.

The U. S. court of appeals upheld Sirica's decision Oct. 12.

Nixon said Friday he would not appeal, reporting instead that Sens. Sam J. Ervin and Howard Baker Jr., chairman and vice chairman respectively of the Senate Watergate Committee, had agreed to accept authenticated summaries of five of the tapes that they had been seeking.

Nixon said Cox had rejected compromise and Saturday fired the special prosecutor when Cox said he would continue to fight for the tapes in court.

Sirica opened today's historic hearing at 2:06 p. m. EDT by reading mandates of the Court of Appeals officially returning jurisdiction in the tapes case to him. He then read his order and that of the Court of Appeals and asked if the White House was prepared to reply.

"I am not prepared to file a response," said Wright from a podium directly in front of the bench. "I am prepared to say that the President of the United States will comply in all respects with the order of Aug. 29 be modified."

Fall Storm Brings Blackouts

A gusty fall storm with winds as high as 60 miles per hour last night brought heavy rain to Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, and caused power blackouts "all over the place."

"It was a typical late October storm," according to Ray W. Foreaker Jr., Marin County public works director. He said most of the problems were caused by falling trees and branches, which hit innumerable electric lines.

Robert H. Williams, district electrical superintendent for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., said there were power failures "all over the county," with the first one reported at 12:39 in San Rafael.

The greatest number of outages, occurred, however, in the evening hours. Most of San Rafael, all of the coastal area of Marin, Woodacre, Fairfax, Greenbrae and Mill Valley were affected. Power in some areas was not restored until this morning and a few individuals still were without electricity at midday, Williams said.

Many television viewers also found their screens snowy and jumping when cable television failed.

One of the most spectacular accidents was in Mill Valley, where a 40-foot bay tree went down on high tension wires and hit a PG&E pole at 1:30 p.m. on Cascade Drive. The pole, which was snapped off about 15 feet from the top, was not replaced until about midnight.

Only minor flooding in a few instances was reported, as the dry ground soaked up the early rainfall.

San Rafael's public works director, Norris M. Rawles, reported that "the big problem was the trees, with leaves plugging culverts and catchbasins." A crew worked through the night to clean out basins.

Although no major damage was reported to Marin homes, the roof of a house on Peninsula Road in Belvedere was secured by firemen after wind started to lift it off and blew out several windows.

A broken water main on Tiburon Boulevard caused some flooding in the area, although officials said it was not related to the storm.

Fallen power lines blocked traffic for a time on East Blithedale Avenue in Mill Valley, and in Fairfax large tree limbs littered many streets, especially Cascade Drive, where a tree smashed through the window of a parked auto. Trees also went through roofs at 6 San Gabriel Drive and 125 Manor Road, according to firemen.

Heavy Fighting Resumed As Mideast Peace Fails

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Both sides resumed the Middle East war in full fury today, shattering a cease-fire that was barely 12 hours old.

Israel renewed its offensive in Egypt, sent spearheads to within 37 miles of Cairo and proclaimed that victory was almost complete. Cairo said only that heavy fighting had broken out and that Israel started it.

Egypt summoned the United Nations Security Council into emergency session at noon EDT to hear its complaint that Israel had violated the cease-fire ordered by the Council early yesterday after the United States and Soviet Union worked out in Moscow their first superpower end-the-war agreement.

Pentagon sources said the fighting today involved two Egyptian tank thrusts along both sides of the Suez Canal aimed at cutting off the Israeli crossing point into Egypt and another epic tank battle in the Sinai Desert on the east bank of the canal.

The Pentagon sources said Egypt struck twice with its air force but was turned back both times by the Israeli air force with the Egyptians losing 11 planes in dogfights and the Israelis three. Israel has destroyed or captured many SAM missile sites on the west bank and correspondents said few were being fired now.

Heavy ground and air fighting was reported on the west bank of the canal inside Egypt where the Israelis said Egypt counterattacked with tanks today and on the Sinai Desert where there were artillery duels and the major tank battle. Egypt said it went into action after Israel broke the truce.

Cause of the breakdown of the cease-fire in this fourth Middle East War in 25 years could not be pinpointed in view of the conflicting claims. But dispatches from Tel Aviv said the Israeli military command believed the continuation would give its generals the extra round they needed to deal a knockout blow to the Arabs.

"Syria's army has been badly beaten and Egypt's is close to defeat," Lt. Gen. David Elazar, the Israeli chief of the armed forces, said in an order of the day to his troops. "....We have emerged victorious, although our victory is not yet complete."

UPI Correspondent Joseph W. Grigg reported from Beirut that an underlying cause for the breakdown appeared to be that neither side had clearcut lines as at end of the 1967 Six Day War and that both sides were unhappy with the hopelessly confused battlefield positions. There were predictions the cease-fire would take effect in reality within two or three days.

Although Syria did not accept the UN cease-fire, a UN truce observation team reported from the Israeli-Syrian front that a truce was in full effect on that front by late yesterday afternoon Syrian time. The report to UN headquarters in New York said the last firing on that front ceased at 4:35 p.m. (10:35 a.m. EDT).

Because Syria had not formally accepted the ceasefire, Aziz Sidky, an aide to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, flew to Damascus this morning in an effort to win general Arab backing for Egypt's acceptance of the truce. Cairo dispatches said Sidky also would go to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and other Persian Gulf states and to Algeria and Libya.

The cease-fire was to have become effective at 12:50 p.m. EDT yesterday but within hours the Israelis reported Egyptian artillery attacks were continuing along both banks of the Suez Canal. UPI Correspondent Gerard Loughran, with Israeli forces in Egypt, said the front had died down an hour after the truce deadline except for occasional single Egyptian artillery bursts.

Loughran said Israelis on the west bank fired eight golden parachute flares into the skies to celebrate the end of the war and that Israeli troops fired tracer bullets over their own

FIGHTING RESUMES — Less than 12 hours after a shaky cease-fire took effect, Israel ordered its troops back into the 1973 Middle East War today, accusing Egypt of fierce attacks along the Suez Canal. Egypt, however, reported only sporadic shooting along the southern front before resumption of the fighting and said Israel made the charges to justify a major attack. (UPI Map)

Nixon Turns Attention To Mideast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon turned away temporarily today from the new Watergate storm to get a first hand report from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on the breakdown in the Mideast cease-fire that Kissinger helped to negotiate.

Kissinger arrived back in Washington at 2:15 a.m. EDT from Tel Aviv, where he had stopped on his way back from Moscow after working out the cease-fire with Soviet leaders. Kissinger appeared at the White House less than seven hours later and met soon afterward with the President.

Nixo spent the night at his Camp David retreat with his wife, presumably pondering his next moves in the crisis atmosphere that has prevailed in Washington since he ordered the firing Saturday night of Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

While some members of Congress —and others —were calling for Nixon's resignation or impeachment, the President's aides pictured him as calm and confident that he would ride out the controversy as his position became clearer.

One official —while conceding that criticism was heavy from all sides —said: "I trust that in all the flow of news on Watergate, the delicacy of this (Mideast) diplomatic achievement will not be overlooked."

The cease-fire arrangement worked out by Kissinger and Soviet leaders raised hopes of an end to the new fighting, and appeared to be working when Kissinger left Tel Aviv after meeting with Israeli leaders. But less than an hour after Kissinger reached Washington, general fighting resumed amid charges of violations by both sides.

While Nixon concerned himself with the Mideast, aides were busy contacting members of Congress and others to reverse what they admitted was a surprisingly one-sided reaction against the President's ouster of Cox.

Nixon's constitutional lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, said the President was not trying to subvert the Watergate investigation by a compromise proposal whereby he would allow written accounts of his Watergate conversations to be given investigators, rather than release the tapes themselves.

Wright said Nixon wanted to keep the issue from dragging on for several months, and that in proposing the arrangement, Nixon made "a tremendous concession." Cox refused to accept it and his office was abolished.

House Demos To Open Impeachment Inquiry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democratic leaders decided today to begin an inquiry into whether grounds exist to start impeachment proceedings against President Nixon. (See another story, page 29.)

The agreement, staving off for the time being a flood of impeachment resolutions introduced by Democrats, came at a closed meeting of the 23-member Democratic Steering Committee headed by Speaker Carl Albert.

Albert issued a statement that Congress must not act in "a reckless or hasty manner," nor, he said should it hold up action on the nomination of House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford as vice president.

"It seems to me to contribute to divisiveness among the American people at a time when the leadership of the nation should seek unity," Albert said. "For the Congress to act in a reckless or hasty manner would further engender disunity."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, joined some other leading Democrats today in calling for the start of impeachment proceedings.

"The prospect of impeachment is awesome," Muskie said in prepared speech for an appearance at the University of Toledo (Ohio). "But the prospect of government lawlessness is worse."

"It is possible that before the process ever culminates in a Senate trial, we might find other means of resolving our crisis.

"But while we search for those avenues of accommodation, we should use the instruments the Constitution provides to set limits on the conduct of the President."

Elliot L. Richardson, resigned as attorney general Saturday night rather than carry out Nixon's order to fire Cox, declined to say today whether he felt the President should be impeached. At a news conference, he said that decision must be made by the American people themselves. The House leaders agreed on a three-pronged approach in the wake of Nixon's weekend firing of the Watergate Special Prosecutor

Richardson Declines Impeachment Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson declined to say today whether he felt President Nixon should be impeached. That decision, he said, must be made by the American people themselves.

At a nationally televised news conference from the Great Hall in the Justice Department, Richardson said "the future well-being and security of our beloved country" is at stake in how the nation judges Nixon's actions in discharging Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Asked if he would have done what Cox did in rejecting the tapes compromise proposed by the White House, Richardson said: "I would have done what he has done."

Richardson declined to say specifically how he felt about various demands that Nixon be impeached for firing Cox and for not obeying a court order to turn over his Watergate tapes to Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

That, Richardson said, "is a question for the American people" to decide. He said he could not answer it.

Richardson said he felt compelled to resign Saturday night rather than carry out Nixon's instruction to fire Cox because "at stake was the very integrity of the governmental process I came to the department to restore."

At his confirmation hearing last May, Richardson gave the senators his personal pledge that Cox would have complete independence to investigate Watergate no matter where the matter led and would not be removed except for "extraordinary improprieties."

Richardson told newsmen he had full confidence that the Watergate investigation would be adequately handled by Henry E. Petersen, assistant attorney general in charge of the department's criminal division. Petersen has been promised a free hand by Robert H. Bork, the acting attorney general.

Board Sets Forum On President

Marin County Supervisors today agreed to "provide a public forum" on requests they call for the resignation or impeachment of President Richard Nixon.

Supervisors said they will discuss the matter next Tuesday when colleague Michael Wornum returns from a trip to the East Coast.

Novato attorney Thomas T.Storer asked the board to call for Nixon's resignation today in light of his firing special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. He won support only from Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, who urged the matter be delayed until Wornum returns.

Supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said such action was not a matter the board should consider. Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste said he had not made up his mind.

BRIAN JOSEPHSON

Five Share Nobel Prizes For Physics, Chemistry

STOCKHOLM (UPI) —A German, Ernst Fischer of Munich and an Englishman, Geoffrey Wilkinson of the University of London today shared the 1973 Nobel Prize for Chemistry, the Royal Academy announced.

Two Americans, Ivar Giaever of the General Electric Company in Schenectady, N.Y. and Leo Esaki of International Business Machines, New York, and Brian Josephson of Cambridge, England, won the 1973 Nobel Physics prize, the academy said.

The Academy quoted one of the nominators for this year's award as saying, "It is the considered opinion of the nominator that the work of Fischer and Wilkinson has revolutionized transition metal chemistry during the past two decades."

They will share the $122,000 prize.

For the Physics Prize the academy cited Esaki and Giaever for their work with semiconductors and superconductors and Josephson for his theoretical predictions of the properties of supercurrent through a tunnel barrier, particularly phenomena called "Josephson effects."

Giaever, reached by telephone at his home in Schenectady N.Y., said, "It was for some work I did in superconductivity, but I haven't heard any details yet."

Giaever, 44, said he has been with General Electric Co. at least 15 years.

"I was born in Norway but I've been living in the United States for about 20 years," he said. He said he became a U.S. citizen about 10 years ago.

He said the work was done about 10 years ago at the General Electric Research Laboratory in Schenectady.

"What I have done is marrying tunneling to superconductivity."

Giaever and his wife have four children, ranging in age from 19 to 7, he said.

Giaever received his doctoral degree in physics from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy in 1964.

In Yorktown Heights, N. Y., Esaki said he was "overwhelmed" and "surprised" and thought "at first it was all a joke."

"I got the first indication at 7:30 a.m. when a newsman called me from New York and told me I won," Esaki said, gradually raising his voice over the ringing of telephones and rushing about of people in his office at IBM's Thomas J. Watson Research Center in Yorktown Heights in Westchester County.

"My family is so excited."

Esaki specifically got the prize for his work in the mid to late 1950s on the tunneling effects of electrons in semiconductors in that he was the first to demonstrate the "tunneling" of an electron through a semiconductor and also built the Tunnel Diode (also known as the Esaki diode), which is based on this tunneling effect.

The Esaki diode is used in high frequency devices such as television sets, radios and communication equipment, Esaki said.

Esaki, 48, born in Osaka, Japan, received his physics doctorate in Tokyo in 1959. He is an IBM "fellow" at the Yorktown Heights laboratory.

He joined IBM at that Yorktown Heights Laboratory in 1960. The laboratory is the headquarters for IBM's research division.

For his work on the so-called tunneling phenomena in solids, Esaki has already won the Morris N. Liebmann Prize of the Institute of Electronics and Electrical Engineers and the Ballantine Award from the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia, according to the IBM spokesman.

Esaki is married, lives in Chappaqua, N.Y., in Westchester County and has three children, two girls and a boy, ranging in age from 8 to 13 years old.

The academy said the prize this year was in "chemistry for chemists," and explained "a very essential part of scientific discipline is its structure and its concepts. Fischer and Wilkinson widened the basic concepts of chemistry by their work and therefore also changed the structure of chemistry."

Their study investigated how organic and metallic atoms can merge with one another although there is not yet any practical use for the method, according to Professor Gunnar Brusewitz of the Swedish Academy.

Brusewitz said, however, "It may mean that the present lead in gasoline can be replaced with less dangerous metallic ingredients, creating less risks of exhaust pollution in large cities."

He stressed the chemistry of organometallic compounds was still in the experimental stage. "For the first time in many years, we have awarded a prize for pure basic chemistry research, not for methods or discoveries that border both to the biological and physical fields", he said.

The chemistry award cited Fischer, of the Technical University of Munich, and Wilkinson for their pioneering work, performed independently, on the chemistry of the organometallic so-called "sandwich compounds"

Fischer, 55, was educated at the Munich Technical University and in 1969 became director of the university's inorganic chemistry laboratory.

Wilkinson, 52, was educated in London and now is a professor of inorganic chemistry at the Imperial College of Science and Technology of the University of London.

Josephson, 33, was trained at Cambridge University and since 1967 was assistant director of research at Cambridge University Physics Department.

Josephson was 22 and a graduate student at Cambridge when he formed his discoveries. He published an analysis in 1962 which, the Academy said, "led to new and unexpected phenomena in superconductors and in particular the phenomena which are generally called Josephson's effects."

Veteran Newsman Plans To Retire

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) —J. Wallace Carroll, editor and publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel since 1963 and a veteran of more than 40 years in the newspaper business, will retire at the end of this year.

Carroll joined the Journal and Sentinel in 1949 as executive news editor and has been with it since, except for an eight-year stint as Washington news editor for the New York Times.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Pioneer Danger

REDONDO BEACH (UPI) — Pioneer 10, launched seven months ago and now farther from Earth than any spacecraft has ever gone, may be destroyed by the titanic forces of the giant planet Jupiter, scientists said yesterday.

Radiation and electrical fields of greater force than any near Earth await Pioneer 10 in the next several weeks and could ruin its working components, warned Dr. Fred Scarf and B. J. O'Brien, of TRW systems.

The plan called for Pioneer to swing around Jupiter, gaining speed from the crack-the-whip impetus of the planet's gravity, and head on to bypass Saturn. In the years to come it will become the first man-made object to leave the solar system, sailing past the orbit of Pluto into the vast reaches of interstellar space.

Truce Violations

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist ceasefire violations hit their highest point in six weeks today and the military command reported 48,151 Vietnamese, including more than 10,000 government soldiers, have been killed since the Jan. 28 truce.

The command said the Communists violated the cease-fire 124 times in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, the most since 126 were reported Sept. 7.

A command spokesman said the worst fighting was in Dinh Tuong Province straddling Highway 4, the "rice road" from Saigon to the Mekong Delta.

Bomb Victim

BELFAST (UPI) — An elderly deaf man who apparently misheard the directions of those trying to guide him to safety was killed last night in a bomb blast that wrecked a Belfast bar, police said.

Police and army troops mounted a city-wide dragnet looking for a car seen speeding from the pub minutes after the bomb went off. A police spokesman said a resident saw the car driving away and gave a good description of it.

Supply Convoy

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A convoy of 230 trucks pushed up Highway 4 without rebel resistance to Phnom Penh yesterday, bringing rice and other goods from the deep water port of Kompong Som, the high command said today.

It was the third convoy to reach the capital since Highway 4, the American built "friendship road" to the gulf of Thailand, was cleared of insurgent soldiers.

Phnom Penh's rice reserves, which had fallen below a six weeks' supply during the three weeks the road was blocked between late September and Oct. 11 and cut again early last week, have improved considerably since then.

Back To London

SYDNEY (UPI) —Queen Elizabeth of Britain flew home to London yesterday after a five-day visit to Australia to attend the opening of the Sydney Opera House. Prince Philip, who had accompanied his wife to Australia, remained in Australia for a tour that will last until Nov. 7.

Hope For Missing

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A top Communist official has said there is a "remote chance" that some Americans may still be prisoners of war in Laos, according to a group of relatives of missing U.S. servicemen that returned yesterday from Asia.

Members of the National League of Families, a POW-MIA families organization, said they met in Vientiane with Soth Pethrasy, senior Pathet Lao representative there.

He held out hope that some U.S. servicemen might be found and returned after formation of a coalition government in Laos, George L. Brooks, vice chairman of the league, told a news conference.

Give Up Search

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Coast Guard today said the search has been suspended for the last of six persons, three of them Americans, who died when a freighter caught fire and capsized 800 miles off the East Coast.

The Hayes, an oceanographic research vessel, rescued 35 crewmen and one passenger from the stricken vessel, the Eurygenes, which "burned right up," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

A spokesman for P. D. Marchessini and Co. of London, owner of the Greek-registered ship, said three crewmen and two passengers, Edna Lester of Lake Odessa, Mich., and Mrs. Francis Gordon of Washington, D.C., died when a lifeboat capsized after the command was given to abandon ship. Mrs. Gordon's husband, a doctor, was missing, he said.

Mrs. Lester's husband, Thomas, was reported safe.

Hostages Freed

YACUIBA, Bolivia (UPI) — Four Tupamaro guerrillas released their last five hostages from a hijacked Argentine jetliner yesterday and surrendered under a deal for safe conduct to Cuba.

"They treated us and all the other passengers courteously," said Ernesto Campos, an Argentine legislator who was among the last hostages freed.

Campos, another Argentine congressman, a French scientist and the pilot and co-pilot were threated with death by the group.

Ford Strike Chances Seem Slim

DETROIT (UPI) — The news blackout surrounding the Ford-United Auto Workers contract talks today was seen by observers as a good sign there will be agreement on a new contract for 185,000 workers by Friday's 10 a.m. strike deadline.

The news blackout was imposed at noon yesterday, minutes after the UAW formally terminated its old three-year contract, which had been extended on a day-to-day basis past the Sept. 14 expiration.

Before the information flow was ended, company and union negotiators indicated the remaining 94 hours was ample time to reach a settlement despite such key outstanding issues as voluntary overtime and early retirement for foundry workers.

The news blackout is the traditional sign that intensive negotiations are under way. At Chrysler, where the UAW staged a nine-day strike in September to gain a pattern-setting contract, the blackout was not started until two days before the strike deadline.

At Ford yesterday, instead of the usual press briefings by top negotiators, public relations men handed out two statements —one announcing the union had officially set the strike deadline and the other saying there was a news blackout.

"The parties believe that refraining from any further public discussion of the current negotiations will enable them to proceed uninterrupted with their foremost objective at this time—reaching agreement by Friday at 10 a.m.," the UAW and Ford said in a joint statement.

The setting of a strike deadline had been expected since last week when the union's attempt to get an agreement by yesterday's artificial deadline began to break up. The union had hoped to set a precedent in the automotive industry by negotiating a contract without the need for crisis bargaining created by a deadline.

The economic package at Ford is expected to closely follow the 3 per cent annual wage increase plus 12 cents in the first year and the improved "30-and-out" pension plan. But Ford has said it does not want to match the agreement worked out at Chrysler giving workers the right to refuse some overtime.

Wallace Shooting 'Plumbers' Plan?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg has called for an investigation into the possibility the White House "plumbers" engineered the shooting of Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Ellsberg said some of the "plumbers" including E. Howard Hunt were "professional managers of assassination" and they felt Wallace's not running for President in 1972 was "crucial to their success."

He said he was calling for a re-examination of the shooting "knowing now what the (President) Nixon team was prepared to do to help his election."

Ellsberg, acquitted on charges arising out of his release of the Pentagon papers while working for Rand Corp., discussed Wallace's attack in a lengthy interview with the magazine Rolling Stone on the newstands today.

The former government intelligence analyst also criticized Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger awarded the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize with North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho for negotiating a settlement of the Vietnam war.

Kissinger, according to Ellsberg, was "perceived as a peace-maker, as a lovable wit, a charming fellow, as anything but the murderous creep that he obviously is" for his part in the U.S. bombing of Indochina.

Ellsberg also said Kissinger was "more probably responsible for instigating" the creation of the White House "plumbers unit" than former Nixon aide John Ehrlichman.

Oil Is Still Flowing From Arab Countries

BRUSSELS (UPI) —Oil industry experts said today it appeared that Arab political leaders have not yet issued orders for oil embargos against the United States and the Middle East cease-fire may convince them never to do it.

Industry sources said oil was still flowing normally from Arab ports unaffected by the war, despite pledges of cutbacks and complete cutoff of oil shipments to the United States.

The sources said it appeared that while Arab political leaders had decided on the cutbacks and embargo, the decision had not been translated into orders to oilfields and ports and so had not yet taken effect.

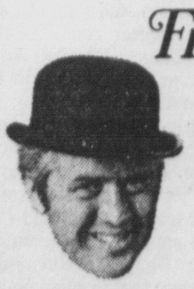

With the ceasefire, the orders may never be given, they said.

But officials of the Vienna-based Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) said the decisions "were long-term ones.

Within the past week, Arab oil-producing nations agreed to cut production by an immediate 10 per cent and to halt shipments to the United States. This was in addition to their decision to cut back production by 5 per cent every month until Israel pulls out of occupied Arab territory.

Fire Aid Given Seldom By City

The San Rafael Fire Department has given "first call" fire assistance to the county only three times in the last four years, a county supervisor reported today.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said figures were gathered after he became suspicious of claims by city officials that their fire department was being taken advantage of by the county.

Roumiguiere said during the years 1969 through 1972 the county fire department requested help from the city 23 times. All but three came on a "second call" basis, meaning the county arrived at the fire first and requested assistance.

On the other hand, he continued, the city requested assistance from the county 38 times during the same four-year-period.

Roumiguiere's figures were the latest ammunition in a squabble between supervisors and city councilmen over mutual fire aid, in which the city claims it is doing more than its share.

Roumiguiere said councilmen arrived at that conclusion by counting the 43 times their fire department responded outside city limits without being requested.

The city council last week told supervisors that beginning Nov. 1 its fire trucks would not respond first to any unincorporated area fire.

In order for their trucks to respond at all, the council decided, the county would have to answer first with a structural fire truck and two-man crew.

The city requirement was aimed primarily at Santa Venetia, where the county has a newly purchased truck manned by one fireman.

Roumiguiere said that during recent negotiations with the city over mutual fire aid, city officials "gave the impression" the number of first call responses was much larger than three.

A check of records shows the city gave first call response once in each of the years 1969, 1970, and 1971. It gave none last year, he said.

Friend Says Bork Made Bad Choice

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Abraham Goldstein, dean of the Yale Law School, says that acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork, his erstwhile colleague, would have done better to have turned down that nomination and resigned as solicitor general as well.

"I suspect he knows my views," Goldstein said, "but my words of advice, I think, come too late. I would have been happier if he, too,had resigned."

Tombs In Central China Produce Historical Art

HONG KONG (UPI) —Rare historical treasures dating back some 2,000 years were unearthed from more than 20 tombs in Central China, the New China News Agency reported from Peking today.

The tombs, located in three counties in Hupeh Province, contained archaic objects that shed new light for study of the ancient Chinese culture, NCNA said.

"These treasures provide new material for the study of Chinese political and economical conditions, military affairs and culture in ancient times," NCNA said.

Among the relics found were bronze objects, silk fabrics, lacquerware in bamboo and wood, inscribed bamboo strips, pottery and jade objects, NCNA said.

It said a well preserved bronze sword made for the third king who reigned from 448 B.C. to 412 B.C. after the famous King Kou Chien of the Hupeh State was also found.

Large numbers of bronze objects, including utensils, tools, chariot and harness accessories, were unearthed in a number of tombs of the Spring and Autumn period, NCNA said.

Take away your filter

But how many have something to say about the taste end? The tobacco.

One brand that has plenty to say is Kent.

We insist on lower-leaf tobaccos for our cigarette. (They're a lot milder than the leaves at the top.) And we go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states for the 24 different tobaccos we use in our blend.

In fact, we place as much importance on our tobaccos as we do on our famous Micronite filter.

Because it takes both to give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Kent. America's quality cigarette.

MEETS THE PRESS — Former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, in a nationally televised news conference in Washington this morning, declined to say whether he felt President Nixon should be impeached. He said the American public must decide the issue.

Richardson declined to discuss reports that Cox's removal had been sought by Nixon since June and that the President deliberately set in motion the course of events which led to his discharge Saturday.

Richardson denied one report that he had been ordered a week ago to fire Cox.

Richardson was asked about Nixon's mood during their discussions last week involving the so-called compromise whereby the White House offered —and Cox refused to accept —written accounts of the Watergate conversations, rather than the tapes themselves.

"The President was very deliberate, very restrained in tone," Richardson replied. "But he was absolutely firm in the course he was determined on."

Since Cox's removal, White House aides have charged that the special prosecutor was carrying out a vendetta against the administration. Asked about that charge, Richardson said, "I don't think his object was to 'get Richard Nixon.' "

Soldier's Body Found In Wreck

JEFFERSON, Ore. (UPI) — State highway department employes yesterday found the partially decomposed body of a Fort Ord, Calif., soldier in the heavily-damaged wreckage of his car in a culvert in the median strip of Interstate 5 just north of here.

The Marion County district attorney's office tentatively identified the victim as Douglas Lynn Nyberg, 27, and said he apparently had been dead several weeks.

Authorities said the vehicle could not be seen from the freeway or the overpass because of the heavy brush area around the culvert. They speculated Nyberg was southbound on the freeway and veered off the road into the 15- foot deep culvert in his small foreign-made car.

Stability Of Nixon Doubted

SAN DIEGO (AP) — State Sen. George Moscone says events of the past weekend raise questions about President Nixon.

"He is acting as something less than a stable person," the San Francisco Democrat and party floor leader said yesterday of Nixon's firing of Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

"He has lost his political savvy, but more serious than that, I'm not so sure he hasn't lost his sense of balance in a medical sense."

Moscone spoke to reporters during a visit here to campaign for governor and against Prop. 1, Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax initiative on the Nov. 6 ballot.

Mountaineering Class Is Missing

MARKLEEVILLE (AP) — Sixteen members of a high school mountaineering class and their two instructors were missing today in a blizzard in the High Sierra, sheriff's deputies said.

Alpine Deputy Paige Abel said four members of the expedition made their way to the community of Bear Valley late yesterday to report the group had lost its way and become separated while hiking in the heavy snows and high winds at about 10,000 feet altitude.

Secretary Rehired By Board

A secretary at the Strawberry Point School who was fired last June has been reinstated by the Mill Valley School District board.

Supt. Peter G. Palches announced today that Mrs. Floy Lunt, formerly of Corte Madera and now of San Francisco, will return as secretary to the school's new principal, Mrs. Clare A. Broadhead, and will receive back pay for her lost time.

He said that the board made the decision at a closed session last week.

She had been dismissed by the then principal of Strawberry Point, Alfred Gordon, and former Supt. James A. Collins, for allegedly encouraging dissension at the school and undermining Gordon's authority.

She had served 17 years in the district at Alto and Park schools, as well as Strawberry Point, and made about $7,900 a year.

The board took action following two special hearings on her case. Her attorney, Hirsch Adell of Los Angeles, had argued that the firing of Mrs. Lunt infringed on her right of free speech.

Sausalitan, 26, Arrested In Jewelry Theft

Police said Ronald Manly Bystrom of 214 Third Street, Sausalito, stashed $600 in gold jewelry in the water tank of a toilet at the Deck House restaurant, 660 Bridgeway. Bystrom was held in the county jail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said that officers, answering a telephone tip, arrived at the Dubin Dubim jewelry store in a small shopping mall at 660 Bridgeway at 12:05 a.m. They said they saw Bystrom standing outside before disappearing into the restaurant.

IMPEACH

Archibald Cox:

The House Judiciary Committee will start an inquiry to determine whether there are impeachable offenses to warrant actual impeachment hearings.

The judiciary committee will also consider creation of a new prosecutor's office — independent of executive branch control, to continue the Cox investigations.

The judiciary committee will also continue with its scheduled investigation and eventual hearings on Rep. Gerald R. Ford's nomination as Vice President.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N. Y., introduced an impeachment resolution accusing Nixon of "violations of the Constitution and law" ranging from Watergate issues to bombing of Cambodia.

The various impeachment resolutions are expected to be routinely referred to the judiciary committee.

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., who has been calling for the start of impeachment proceedings, said he was against the inquiry approach.

"If there is one thing Congress has to do it is to respond to Nixon's actions," he said. "Halfway measures in responding will not satisfy the country."

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., a member of the Democratic leadership team, said the group had devised a plan to forestall any move to get an immediate impeachment vote on the floor of the House.

"If any member ... were to move for immediate consideration of a motion to impeach, someone representing the leadership then would move to refer it to the judiciary committee and the leadership would be supported in that motion," Wright said.

He said Albert wanted work begun on Ford's nomination before any impeachment proceedings move very far in committee.

Cargo Handling Threat Renewed

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) —U.S. maritime unions today renewed their threat to refuse to handle ships bound for the Soviet Union unless the Kremlin halts its military aid to the Arabs in the Middle East war and the Arabs resume oil shipments to the United States.

President Thomas W. Gleason of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) said he and presidents of the other maritime unions would hold their boycott in abeyance for the time being to see whether a real peace settlement is achieved in the Middle East and whether the Arabs cancel their orders reducing shipments of oil to the United States and other western nations.

lines while an Israeli colonel uncorked a bottle of wine to celebrate the peace. Egyptian artillery began exploding nearby and the Israelis dived for their shelters, cursing.

"We were premature," said the colonel.

The Israeli position inside Egypt covers roughly 500 square miles and extends from Ismailia some 40 miles to the south where it cuts the main highway from Cairo to Suez City—and cuts off important Egyptian oil supplies from its Arab Persian Gulf allies. Suez City, also is the center of Egyptian oil refineries. The Israeli bulge extends roughly 20 to 30 miles inside Egypt.

A 5 p.m. (11 a.m. EDT) Israeli communique said Israeli pilots bombed Egyptian positions on both sides of the canal and shot down 10 interceptors while hitting a fuel dump north of Damascus in Syria and downing 10 Arab planes there.

It said fighting was raging all along the bulge into Egypt despite the cease-fire. The Israeli National Radio reported one unit 37 miles from Cairo and said it had captured three airfields.

Cairo reported heavy Israeli bombing attacks on Egyptian army positions in the bulge west of the Suez Canal and between the port of Suez and the Bitter Lakes. It said ground fighting was raging too.

Syria reported air attacks by 60 Israeli planes north of Damascus and said 11 Israeli Phantom and Mirage jets were shot down. Syria also reported renewed ground battles on the slopes of 8,000 foot Mount Hermon, where the two sides have fought hand-to-hand battles for control of the strategic peak since the outbreak of the war Oct.6.

Management Of BART Hit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Legislative analyst A. Alan Post today blamed management of Bay Area Rapid Transit District for the system's numerous troubles.

Post appeared at a hearing of the state Senate Public Utilities and Corporations Committee to report on the status of 21 recommendations he made last Jan. 31 on BART. He said "progress has been extremely disappointing."

A basic BART problem has been the inability of its computers to reliably detect the presence of trains dead on the track. As a result, BART did not commence trans-Bay service as scheduled Sept. 24.

NIXON'S ACTIONS PROTESTED

Some 300 persons gathered at Boston Common yesterday, many carrying signs calling for the impeachment of President Nixon. The group, calling itself the Committee to Remove Our President, marched through the downtown area protesting Nixon's firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. In the background is the historic Park Street Church.

WEATHER BAD

Veterans Day Crowd Is Slim

By GLORIA EAGAN

About 100 persons, most showing gray hair beneath blue envelope-shaped caps, braved gusting winds and heavy rain yesterday to celebrate Veterans Day in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

They stepped over rivulets flowing through a soggy gravel-covered parking lot to get to the entryway of the 2,000-seat auditorium where two veterans passed out programs.

One was Roy Partridge, a member of the Marin County chapter of Veterans of World War I. He held his slim body erect. His eyes brightened when he noticed an Independent-Journal reporter. He had something to say.

"This isn't the right kind of building for a Veterans' Day celebration," he declared. "People don't want opera houses. They want community centers where different groups can meet and feel comfortable."

Sharing that complaint was Carl Guenther, the Americanism chairman for San Rafael's American Legion Post No. 37: "Every county has one. Marin, with its high per capita income, can afford it."

The pair said a convention hall plus separate small rooms to enable several groups to meet simultaneously is a goal of the Marin County United Veterans Council, a group composed of eight separate veteran groups with some 3,000 members. Partridge predicted that a new campaign would soon be mounted to make the plan a reality.

"We tried to tell the county supervisors, but every time we had convinced one bunch, new ones were elected and we had to start all over again," the old soldier complained. "But this time we have all banded together and we are going to fight for it," he said.

Inside the cavernous auditorium, the stage was decorated simply — nine flags representing various veterans' groups flanked one side while nine American flags stood side-by-side on the other.

Anyone expecting an old-style celebration, heavy with patriotic platitudes and podium thumping, would not have found it yesterday. Nostalgia was abundant, but there was no denying that 1973 has arrived. Even to what many consider the last boldout to tradition — the American Legion, which directed the program. The entertainers were young.

Most of the two-hour program was devoted to music provided by a youthful jazz band, "Nostalgia Plus" — five long-haired boys and two long-haired girls, all from San Rafael, aged 16 to 18.

Also taking part was a seven-member color guard drill team representing the 91st Army Division. The team was led by a black youth, wearing sunglasses, a streamlined uniform and a shiny silver helmet decorated with paste-on red, white and blue stars. His companions also showed definite signs of individuality despite the uniforms.

A 20-minute speech stressing the need for a strong military reserve force was delivered by Lt. Col. Anthony Campos, of the Presidio, Executive Officer of the Fourth Brigade of the 91st Division.

He carefully avoided the word "war" referring to past ones as "conflicts."

"Each conflict has been brought about by differing political situations," he said, commenting: World War I was fought to save the world for democracy, World War II was a response to direct aggression, the Korean conflict was fought because of a commitment made to the United Nations and the conflict in Viet Nam came about to preserve the people's right for self determination.

"The common denominator was that men and women served their country honorably," the Lieutenant Colonel declared.

"Much adverse comment has been directed toward the military, but in a time of crisis Americans turn to military leadership and organization," he said.

He emphasized the need for a larger reserve force to back up the nation's new volunteer army.

Master of ceremonies Irving F. Blabon of San Rafael, a member of the Disabled American Veterans of Marin, then introduced 12-year-old banjoist Scotty Plummer of Novato who played a medley of tunes from the 1920s and 1930s.

"Nostalgia Plus", under the direction of Cliff Hildreth, played tunes popular before band members were born.

Their rendition of "Pennsylvania 6-5000" was in the authentic Glenn Miller style, complete with muted coronets and trumpets, with members pausing to sing out the title of the song.

Also performing were members of the Air Force Junior Cadet, ROTC drill squad from Novato under the command of Lt. Col. Walter Van Emon.

After a prayer delivered by a uniformed chaplain from the Presidio, the tribute to those who bore arms in the past came to an end. Outside the rain had subsided. Members of "Nostalgia Plus" hauled their instruments to a waiting pick-up truck.

Bartender Is Stabbed During Row

Howard M. Smith, 30, of 109 Second Street, Sausalito, was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with a stab wound in the left side of his chest.

The fight began inside the bar at 153 Throckmorton Avenue when Smith and coworker Russell Cooper tried to prevent the two black men from slapping the woman around, police said.

Several persons, including Smith, heard her fling a racial slur at the men as she walked to the jukebox to play some music, according to officers.

The scuffle drifted outside the bar, where several other patrons joined in. At one point, Smith was pushed to the ground, but he was unable to tell investigators when he was stabbed or who stabbed him. It wasn't until several minutes later, after the heat of the argument had subsided, that Smith realized he had been wounded, police said.

Officers arrived at 1:40 a.m. to find Smith sitting on the floor, being administered to by friends. No weapon was found and there was no arrest. The woman, who was not identified, was not hurt, according to police.

Park, Recreation Discussion Slated

The Novato City Council will meet with the Novato Parks and Recreation Department at 8 p.m. today to discuss the city's park plans and recreation programs.

The council will then complete last week's agenda including discussion of the relative advantages of a general law city and a charter city. Some city officials have considered changing Novato from general law to charter, but it must be approved by the voters.

One Enters Plea To Melee At Hamilton

One of four persons arrested in a melee at Hamilton Air Force Base Thursday has pleaded innocent to assaulting a peace officer.

A preliminary hearing for Estus T. Berry Jr., 24, of Vallejo, was set for Nov. 5 by Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court.

Still to plead is Diane Williams, 22, of the base, charged with the same felony count as Berry. She was due in court today.

Two others — Ronald Alexander, 21, and Ray Emmett Madden, 20, both of the base — have been charged with obstructing officers, a misdemeanor and will plead Friday.

The four were arrested after a family dispute between Mrs. Williams and her husband, Paul, during which she reportedly threw two knives at a base policeman, who tried to stop the fight.

Berry, Alexander and Madden allegedly interfered with base officers and Novato police and were themselves arrested.

Clausen Seeking Stiff Political Spy Sentences

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Persons convicted of political spying during federal election campaigns could receive sentences of up to 10 years under legislation introduced today by Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District.

Clausen's bill would prohibit any employee or volunteer working for a candidate to spy on another candidate. It also would prohibit the use of campaign funds to pay for political espionage.

The legislation further would make it a felony for anyone connected with a political campaign to knowingly conceal any violation of the proposed ban on espionage or of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 dealing with campaign financing.

The bill provides for a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment of up to 10 years for any of the three cited offenses.

Clausen said many bills had been introduced to strengthen campaign finance laws but that his was aimed directly "to deal effectively with the moral and ethical implications involved in the Watergate case."

"Political espionage, in my judgement, has no place in the American election process and it should be clear by now that most people in this country find it repugnant and completely contrary to our system of open and free elections," the California Republican said in introducing the measure.

Woman Facing Check Charge

A Kentfield woman has been ordered to appear Nov. 5 in Marin Superior Court to answer a felony check forgery charge.

Gina Janice Morena, 18, was bound over Friday by Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman following a preliminary hearing.

She is accused of trying to cash a check Oct. 9 at a San Rafael bank using another person's identification.

Marin Talk Set By Richardson

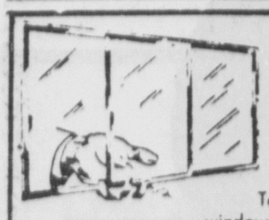

Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, a likely candidate next year for his party's nomination to challenge Sen. Alan Cranston, will speak on Saturday at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant, San Rafael.

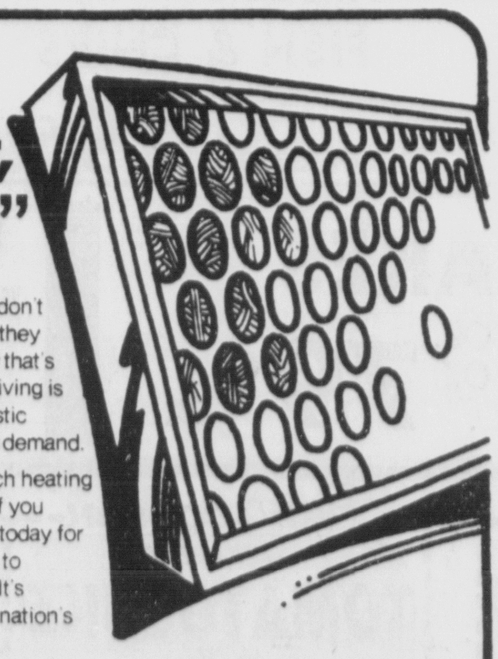

The program, sponsored by United Republicans of California units of Marin and Sonoma counties, will start at 6:30 p.m. with no-host cocktails. Dinner will be at 8 p.m.

Reservations are being handled by Jane Alexander of San Anselmo

Merrill Court Boosts The Elderly

BERKELEY (UPI) — Isolated senior citizens "die sociologically before they die biologically" and could lead happier, more fulfilling lives at "old age communes," according to a University of California sociologist.

Dr. Arlie Hochschild studied a senior citizens public housing project in San Francisco she refers to as Merrill Court. Her object in studying the residence was to disprove a "theory of disengagement" which she says "held sway" in the 1960s.

The theory of disengagement said that as a result of biological and sociological factors the elderly choose to limit friendships and acquaintances and are satisfied with this isolation. Dr. Hochschild said the theory "seems to legitimate a disconcern for the problems of old age."

From her study she found that isolation, loneliness and feelings of uselessness largely disappeared when old persons lived in a community of their peers.

"Old people who rely on chance encounters with bank clerks or nurses for emotional sustenance die sociologically before they die biologically," she said.

She described Merrill Court as a "beehive of activity," with meetings of a service club, bowling, morning workshops for charitable projects. Bible study classes, monthly birthday parties and visits to four nearby nursing homes.

The residence, funded with local, state and federal funds, housed 43 persons, mostly widows, averaging 68 years of age, who were mobile and selfsufficient and who earned less than $3,000. Each resident lived in a single apartment with a kitchen.

Dr. Hochschild said, "Having a community of peers or friends your own age actually strengthens your relationship with your family." She said she found that Merrill Court dwellers frequently visited or were visited by their families.

If they didn't live in such a socially active community, she said, they would be much more dependent on their families and that dependency would "dislocate" or change the equal and beneficial relationship they had.

Dr. Hochschild also noted a study by San Francisco sociologist Irving Rossow which disagreed with the "stay young — live with young people" theory.

She said Rossow's study showed that old people living in an all senior citizens community had more friends, saw their friends more and were more satisfied with their social lives than those living in housing projects with all ages.

Communities such as Merrill Court also give the elderly "sibling relationships," said the sociologist, "meaning similarity and equality and independence in contrast to the parent-child type of bond most often found in institutional care."

She said a second kind of adolescence is also provided by a community like Merrill Court because older people have more freedom when they are in a group of their peers.

"In a society that raises an eyebrow at those who do not act their age, this subculture encourages the old to dance, to sing, to flirt and joke. What's more, they can talk frankly about death in a way less common between the old and young," she said.

Dr. Hochschild said these old age communities are rare and she is concerned about old people who do not have access to a community of their peers.

"They are the ones who suffer the quietly devastating isolation of old age," she said.

Theft Attempt Charge Denied

Mark Allen Warner of San Francisco, whose alleged burglary attempt at a Forest Knolls store was broken up by Marin Sheriff's deputies, has denied responsibility for the theft.

Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court set a preliminary hearing for next Tuesday for Warner, 23, after he pleaded innocent Friday.

Deputies said Warner was one of two men who stacked cigarettes and malt liquor outside the Little Store last Tuesday, then were chased away by officers. The other man escaped.

Woman Injured; Walks Into Car

A 52-year-old San Anselm woman was hospitalized last night after she walked into a car stopped at a San Anselmo intersection, police said today.

Coelentina Vasquez of 405 Redwood Road was reported in satisfactory condition today in Marin General Hospital with a fractured elbow and head injuries suffered in the accident at 7:10 p.m. yesterday.

Police said she was crossing the intersection at Ross and San Anselmo avenues during heavy rains and a power outage when she bumped into a car stopped at the intersection.

San Diego Hardware Supplies The Unusual

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — San Diego Hardware is a store for people: It pays careful attention to hard-to-find items.

The store stocks about 50,000 articles ranging from kerosene lamps and hard-to-find glass chimneys to the latest in quality tools.

The results are that walk-in customers wait in line regularly for personal service that has largely disappeared from department stores and never has been available in discount houses.

"We're constantly searching for things that we can't find that people want," said Don Haynsworth, president of the family corporation operating the store. "When we're with customers, we try to use eyes in back of our heads to find out what they want."

Wadham Gazlay, corporation board chairman and Haynsworth's uncle, added, "We scour the country looking for items, unusual items, things that our customers still demand, so we can keep them in stock."

"We don't use a computer connected to the cash register to tell us what we're selling or what we need," Haynsworth said. "We just eyeball something, and if we like it, we buy it."

The approach shows in the store's 1920s country store atmosphere. Pot-belly stoves — new and for sale —sit in a corner, cast iron weathervanes hang over the front windows, long rows of 50-year-old cabinets display a surprising variety of cabinet fixtures and related hardware, and rarely seen crocks line the floor of the cookery section.

The one-floor selling area has noticably creaking hardwood floors and corrugated tin roof, and the layout is a maze of narrow aisles created by display cases and bins of nails, electrical and plumbing supplies and numerous other items.

"Our customers ask us if we're going to remodel," Gazlay said. "They say they like the atmosphere of the place and they want us to keep it that wwy."

His father, Fred Gazlay, founded the firm after moving here from Missouri. The store opened in 1892 two blocks from its present downtown location.

The appearance was never cultivated, Haynsworth said. "It's just kind of grown up that way —just age, I guess."

"We've counted up to 200 types of screwdrivers and 100 types of hammers," Gazlay said of the store's efforts to make sure that if it's hardware, it's on hand or no longer made.

"We still keep pot-belly stoves," he said. "We have glass chimneys for kerosene lamps in all shapes and sizes, and they sell too, both for practical and decorative purposes. Some people make planters or lamps out of the stoves. People who have mountain cabins use the stoves for cooking. We get business from people in Mexico who buy the stoves because they have no butane, gas or electricity."

The store seldom throws any of its stock away, Gazlay said.

"If it's old and hard to get, we keep it; we're bound to have a customer sooner or later," he said.

"We were down to one 10-gallon milk can a few months ago, and we finally sold it as an antique. We can't get them any more."

The store does not operate a mail order business as such, but "we get letters from all over the country from people wanting unusual things," Haynsworth said. "People have been here and they know we have it."

The unusual requests included one from a U.S. Navy unit at Jacksonville, Fla., for a certain bubble level. "It might have been available elsewhere, but they knew we had it," Haynsworth said.

Judge In Corona Trial Criticized

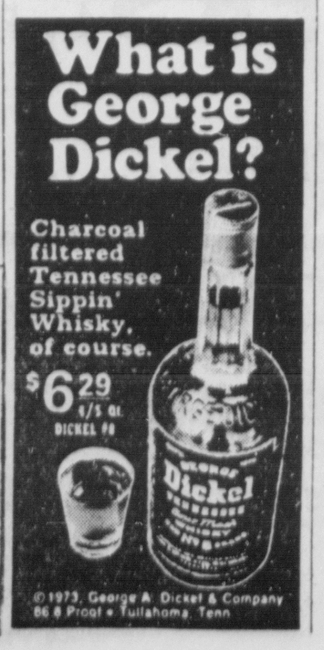

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Attorneys for the prosecution and the defense in the Juan Corona mass murder trial have criticized Judge Richard Patton as being too timid in his conduct of the trial.

The prosecution thinks Patton should have cracked down on "emotional outbursts" by defense attorney Richard Hawk, while Hawk criticized Patton for not declaring a mistrial on the grounds of jury tampering.

PABLO CASALS
Wishes carried out

Casals Will Be Buried In San Juan

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Pablo Casals, the most famous cellist of his time, lay in state at his hilltop home today before burial in his adopted Puerto Rico as a last rebuke to the nationalist government of his native Spain.

Casals, 96, died yesterday of heart and lung complications.

The famed cellist-composer-conductor vowed in 1939 never to return to Spain so long as it was ruled by Gen. Francisco Franco. He kept the self-imposed exile pledge the last 34 years of his life, and, in keeping with his wishes, it will be respected in death.

The body was to be taken from his home later today to be placed under the rotunda of the Puerto Rican capital building so the public may pay tribute.

Christian burial at the Puerto Rican Memorial Cemetery in Isla Verde was to be preceded by an afternoon mass officiated by Cardinal Luis Aponte Martinez at La Piedad Catholic Church. Plans called for Casals' "Song of the Birds" to be played at the mass as the maestro requested.

The Catalonian maestro moved to Puerto Rico, homeland of his mother, in 1957 with his Puerto Rican wife, Marta Montanez. He became a beloved institution, founding the Puerto Rico Conservatory of Music, the Puerto Rican Symphony Orchestra and the annual Casals Festival.

Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon proclaimed three days of official mourning for Casals, and ordered U.S. and Puerto Rican flags flown at half-staff throughout Puerto Rico.

With characteristic Latin fervor, Hernandez Colon said in his proclamation:

"A giant has died. A giant in music, giant in liberty, a giant in peace. He died in Puerto Rico, land of his mother who inspired his art, land of liberty, land of peace. This people, which is honored to have him among us, which grew with his music and was vitalized by his inspiration, today weeps at his death and opens its heart to receive him in our insides on his trip to eternity."

At last night's wake, Marta's brothers carried the gold casket into the living room of the maestro's suburban home. Marta Montanez de Casals, 36, stood at the position of honor, in a long-sleeved black dress, holding the Catalonian red and yellow multistriped flag in one hand and the lone star Puerto Rican tricolor in the other. She blinked back tears.

The closed casket was placed between two gigantic red floor candles. A cello replica of red and white carnations and a crucifix were placed atop the casket.

In a corner atop a closed black piano lay Don Pablo's cello, a sad reminder of the departure of a genius.

On the walls were oil paintings of Marta, the maestro, Bach and Beethoven, and a collection of caricatures of Casals.

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — A slight earthquake, registering less than 3.5 on the Richter scale, jiggled this Orange County community last night but no damage was reported.

Insurance Men At Odds Over National No-Fault

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) —Two insurance industry leaders gave opposing viewpoints yesterday on the wisdom of a federal no-fault auto insurance program.

James R. Faulstich, vice president of the National Association of Independent Insurers, argued that a federal approach to no-fault "accomplishes neither the goals of meeting the reasonable expectations of the public or of refraining from usurping authority."

T. Lawrence Jones, president of the American Insurance Association, said a federal program is needed because a state-by-state approach to nofault "is proving to be slow and tortuous, so marked with detours and barricades, so uneven and haphazardly constructed that there simply has to be a better way."

Faulstich and Jones debated not the merits of no-fault but whether federal or state programs should be followed. They spoke before the 42nd annual convention of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Agents.

Jones contended the national no-fault motor vehicle insurance act from the Senate Commerce Committee "offers a far superior road to no-fault auto insurance reform" than what the states could offer.

Faulstich said those who criticize the states for moving cautiously fail to realize the need for experimentation and for tailoring no-fault to the problems of an individual state.

"The returns are just coming in from those states that have adopted no-fault plans," he said. "Let us see what the results are before we make an irrevocable decision to impose one plan on us all."

Price Hike For The Ford Capri

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co.'s West German import, the Capri, will cost $245 more in the United States this year than it did last year.

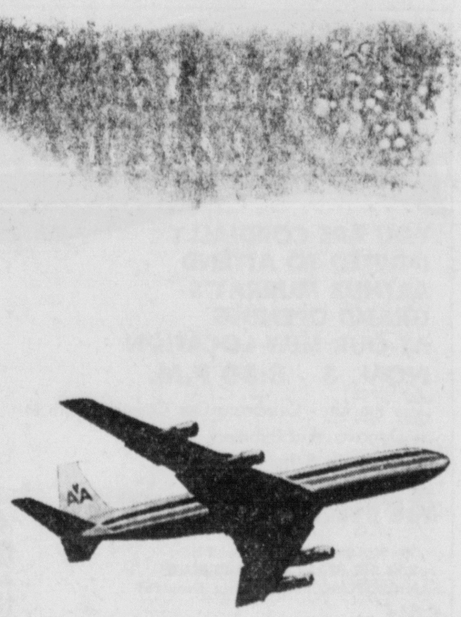

Ford officials said the increase would recover part of the cost needed to meet federally warranted safety and pollution standards.

The increase would raise the cost of each vehicle by 6.8 per cent.

JUST FOR THE FUN OF IT

Mott Urges Baja Area Protection

PLAZA SANTA MARINA, Mexico (UPI) —The Mexican government was urged yesterday to adopt rigid regional and coastline procedures to protect the potentially threatened Baja California ecology. "Tourists with campers and automobiles and off-road vehicles will create your problems," William Penn Mott Jr., director of the California Department of Parks and Recreation said.

The problem is the soon-to-be-completed, 1,056-mile Transpeninsular Highway from Tijuana to Cabo San Lucas.

Bert L. Cole, head of the Washington state public lands commission, said planning technicians and environmental consultants would be provided to aid the Mexicans if they desired. ,

Mott said California did not realize the value of its coastline and desert areas until much of the ecology had been destroyed.

Hearing Is Set On Theft Charge

A preliminary hearing has been set for next Tuesday for Philip Norman Gjervik, 25, of San Rafael, who Friday pleaded innocent to a grand theft charge.

He is accused of stealing two leather jackets valued at $125 each from the Emporium department store Oct. 9.

Boyle Declared Fit To Stand Trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former United Mine Workers President W. A. (Tony) Boyle was declared mentally competent today to stand trial on charges he conspired to murder his union rival, Joseph A. Yablonski.

A government psychiatric report, which was not contested by Boyle's attorney, said, however, there "is a definite possibility that Mr. Boyle might attempt suicide in the future."

Boyle, 71, has been hospitalized since Sept. 24 after taking an overdoes of barbituates.

He had been scheduled to appear in court the next day for a hearing on extraditing him to Pittsburgh where a federal grand jury indicted him in the slaying of Yablonski, his wife, and daughter.

U.S. Magistrate Arthur Burnett rescheduled the hearing for Nov. 9. It had previously been reset for Wednesday.

Boyle's attorney, Charles Moses, told Burnett that Boyle would not contest the government proceeding to have him transferred to Pittsburgh for arraignment.

"We do not intend, at this time, to dispute the indictment proceeding that has been filed against him," Moses said.

Under yesterday's court action, Boyle is to continue to be confined to George Washington University Hospital, in custody of U. S. marshals until the Nov. 9 hearing, at which time he is to appear in court.

Boyle is to be examined again by a government psychiatrist before that date.

Moses said he talked with Boyle about the procedures. "He said that it was fine," Moses told the court.

Farm Labor Tiff Could End Soon

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — An agreement may be signed soon to end the bitter farm labor jurisdictional dispute between the Teamsters and United Farm Workers unions, AFL-CIO president George Meany says.

The Teamsters have delayed signing a tentative agreement to leave organizing of field hands to Cesar Chavez and his UFW.

"I understand the Teamsters executive board is meeting in a week," Meany reported to the AFL-CIO convention here Monday. "We have been in touch with their West Coast representative and are hopeful to bring that agreement to final consummation."

Derby Cheater Fined, Ordered To Apologize

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) —A juvenile judge today fined Robert Lange Sr. $2,000 and told him to apologize to the nation's youth for helping his nephew cheat to win the 1973 National Soapbox Derby at Akron, Ohio.

"I am stunned by the lack of morality in the case," Judge Horace Holmes told Lange, a suburban Denver businessman. He said Lange "owes a tremendous apology to the young people in this country."

Holmes ordered Lange to pay $2,000 to the Boulder, Colo., Boys Club for helping his nephew, James Gronen, 14, install an electromagnet device in his green racer that helped him win the soapbox derby.

Lange had been charged with two counts of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Holmes deferred sentencing on the charges for two years and ordered Lange, whose son won the 1972 derby, to stay out of derby operations until 1975.

Holmes decision was a "nonjudicial adjustment" of the charges asked for by Lange's attorney, Ralph Hardin. Hardin told Holmes that Lange was "not guilty of any criminal action by violating (derby) rules which are never enforced and are openly and notoriously violated by the sanction of soapbox derby officials."

After the ruling, Boulder District Attorney Alex Hunter said his investigation of derby finishers uncovered evidence that at least 34 cars in the race had been doctored. He said six of the top 10 finishers had altered their racers to increase speeds.

Gronen was disqualified and forfeited a $7,500 school scholarship.

An auto loan and the Henderson family.
Special services for special people.

"My name is Jim Henderson, and I'm a fireman with Engine Company No. 8.

"Actually, our car loan was the first association I had with Security Pacific Bank. I saw an ad in the paper about the convenience of their Auto Loans, so I called a branch of Security Pacific, told them what I wanted to buy . . . and in two hours I had a car loan.

"I shopped around, found the best deal, sent the Bank the serial number of the car, and that was pretty much the story. I never even had to go to the Bank.

"I've seen quite a lot of them since then, of course. Now we have a checking account with them, and recently got a Home Improvement Loan too. If I didn't think Security Pacific was something special, I wouldn't keep going back."

Perhaps for you, that "something special" is Ready AutoFinance; the plan that gives you the loan before you choose the car. Or SpecialLease; which means no down payment and usually lower monthly payments than if you were buying the car. Or conventional auto financing, with easy bank terms.

Indiana Trade Team On Downed Aircraft In Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—A Brazilian Vasp airlines turboprop carrying 60 persons, including members of a trade mission from Indiana, crashed today in Guanabara Bay. Hospital officials said two persons were killed.

The twin-engined Japanese-made Samurai aircraft fell into the bay while trying to take off from the downtown Santos Dumont airport on a flight to Belo Horizonte.

The U.S. consulate reported at least six of the eight members of the Indiana trade mission, including Lt. Gov. Robert D. Orr, were rescued uninjured. A local news agency said, however, all eight members of the mission were safe.

The Souza Aguiar hospital said 26 persons were treated for minor injuries.

Penn Life Facing Loss In Equity Life Tangle

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — Pennsylvania Life Corp. says Equity Funding Corp. of America may have misappropriated a $3.72 million payment in 1972.

Equity Funding and a subsidiary, Equity Funding Life Insurance Corp., are currently under the control of state and federal authorities for allegedly perpetrating a $2 billion fraud, the biggest in the history of the insurance industry.

The letter by Pennsylvania Life was sent to its stockholders, it was revealed yesterday, following action Oct. 10 by the Securities and Exchange Commission, halting trading in Penn Life Stock. The SEC said it wanted an explanation of several transactions by Penn Life, headquartered here, with scandal-shaken Equity Funding.

The letter said Penn Life paid $3.72 million in 1972 to Equity Funding Life, but that the funds were placed in the account of the parent firm, Equity Funding, and never reached the insurance company. The letter also said that Equity Funding is contesting with Penn Life over a complex $185 million reinsurance transaction in 1971- 72. Penn Life sold policies to Equity Funding Life, which now maintains that the transactions were invalid, for reasons connected with the alleged fraud at Equity Funding Life.

The letter to the stockholders said that Penn Life would take all steps, including court action, to avoid having the deal cancelled retroactively, but that if that happens, Penn Life's income for 1971-72 will be $2.2 million lower than had been figured at the time.

Equity Funding Life is currently under the control of state insurance authorities. The parent corporation is being run by a director appointed by a U.S. district judge at the request of the SEC.

The firms allegedly created phony insurance sales, registering policies as sold to persons who never existed or real persons who bought no policies.

Laws Said Preventing Women's Advancement

By BARBARA HOSMER

Protective employment legislation in California has been used as a crutch by industry to prevent women from fairly competing in business, chief of the Industrial Welfare Division of the state Department of Industrial Relations Evelyn K. Whitlow said in Corte Madera Saturday.

"And the eight-hour law has kept women from management," she added.

Speaking at the "Women in Business" program of the Marin Business and Professional Women's Club at the Edgewater Inn, Miss Whitlow urged women to file complaints on women's equal pay discrimination cases with her state division.

"We should take these cases to court. I would like to be able to file 50 equal pay cases in the state in 1974 and win every one of them. Then there would be no problem. It is going to take about 50 cases.

"I am the one who okays whether we do or don't file these cases, and I want 'em," she stressed.

SHE ADDED that there are lawsuits going on now on the eight hour law which has restricted women to working eight hours on a job or receiving overtime for additional hours, another reason used by employers to keep women out of higher paid, time-demanding management positions held by men.

She added that she expected that if the cases are won, she will receive new orders and said that she would then ask the Attorney General's office to declare those sections of the labor code invalid and activate legislation to repeal them.

Since passage this legislative session of AB 478, the California Department of Industrial Relations's various divisions must review current provisions of the labor code which apply only to women and children.

They will recommend validating some regulations to apply to men as well, and elimination of others which in the past have been used against women.

She said the only protective sections to remain would be to restrict how many hours minors could work.

"Now the Industrial Welfare Division is treating everyone the same — the saga of law (labor law affecting women) is turned around. Women and men will have the same protections," Miss Whitlow said.

DURING THE panel of businesswomen held as a kickoff for National Businesswomen's Week this week, Los Angeles tax consultant Julia K. Arri said that she had worked in private industry as an accountant for 17 years when the company folded and she found herself out with no career protection. She plunged ahead and opened her own firm.

"Women should really analyze where they work and the company they are working for. Think of its future and benefits," she advised. "And don't be afraid of change. If you are tired and bored with your job, get out."

Larkspur real estate firm owner Sue Schaefer said that after 23 years as an Army wife, she got a real estate license.

"I had no idea I would have my own business. But I opened an office with one desk — mine. I had no salespeople, no listings. Now I have the largest real estate firm in Marin run by a woman, with eight on the sales staff, including one man," she explained.

Other women recounted some of their early ambitions to be in medicine, law, teaching and one a sea captain. Almost none had fulfilled that early ambition, but most agreed they had satisfying careers.

Lois McLain of Corte Madera, a senior trust officer with the Bank of America in San Francisco, cautioned women not to be too satisfied with a comfortable job to fear to "rock the boat" to improve their career.

"I think you should look to where your next opportunity is, and rock the boat," she said.

Others suggested that women look at political office as a career area along with other new opportunities in fields which in the past have been considered men's.

RUTH CHURCH Gupta, San Francisco attorney, said that the Business and Professional Women in California has been sending packets to high school counselors to open their eyes to career areas newly opening to women.

"There are not enough qualified women to fill openings that are beginning to come in management and administration through new affirmative action programs," she said.

Young women and girls need to be encouraged to be trained for these careers, they agreed.

Part of the problem has been that women have lacked the confidence to surge ahead, fearing failure, the panel pointed out.

They suggested that women as a force in the community could urge educational changes to allow women and men to continue their education while working, businesswomen could help other women advance, and could urge presentation in schools of women in a variety fo career fields to give first-hand knowledge of them to younger students.

DESERT TONES of clay and sand are popular in California sportswear this year, and the new season is being called a revival of the classic look by the state's designers. Here, softness is the key in a butter-colored cashmere cardigan over chiffon shirt and gaberdine trousers.

California Fashion Firm Planning No Revolutions

By LINDA DEUTSCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California Fashion Creators, trendsetters in the world of sports and swimwear, opened their 1974 spring previews yesterday with a prediction of safe comfortable styles. No revolutions are planned.

The word for the new season is classic. Blazers continue their success story, topping pants and skirts and even evening gowns.

Evening wear designed in California is delicate and fluffy or gently clinging but rarely daring. The classic slip dress, re-interpreted with floor-length elegance, is the trend leader, frequently topped with a cropped jacket or shawl.

The showings, which run through Thursday, offer a taste of the extensive choices being offered by designers in varied areas—sportswear, swimwear, evening and better dresses and accessories.

THOUGH CALIFORNIA fashion has expanded into every part of the nation, there's still a home grown feeling in clothes that are geared to activity, comfort and a sunny climate. Notably, California designers do not present yearly showings of clothes for winter climates although many design for that season.

California designers live in perpetual spring, and their fashions reflect the mood. Most colors are bright and sunny. The desert tones of clay and sand are popular in sportswear this year.

As if inspired by the ecology movement, several designers are stressing "naturals" such as silk, linen and cotton. But the American woman is unlikely to abandon the ease of polyesters, acetates and permanent press which still dominate the fashion industry.

The classic jackets, skirts and slacks occasionally are touched with nostalgic reminiscences of the 1940s and 50s — puffered shoulders, peplums and gored skirts.

BUT DESIGNERS who still remember the financial sting of the midi-skirt have made no extreme changes in styles that sell. Hemlines remain in the safety zone — just at the knee or slightly above.

Swimsuits, scheduled to be previewed later in the week, also are expected to play it safe by offering a larger array than usual of one-piece suits for those who just aren't brave — or slim — enough for miniscule bikinis.

FLOOR-LENGTH skirts and dresses are still the headliners in California fashions. Shown (left) is an embroidered linen and imported lace skirt, tie sashed and paneled with lace trimmed petticoats. A voile shirt tops the outfit which calls for another big fashion entry, the delicately crocheted shawl. Geared to an active and comfortable spring is the three piece suit (right.) Done in a country print cotton seersucker, box pleats add easy swing to the shirt jacket overblouse.

16-Year-Old Doesn't Believe In Spankings For Punishment

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Last week I sneaked out every night with a boy my folks hate. As punishment, Dad said I must report to his room every night this week for a spanking.

I'm sore and shamed because he turns me over his knee, pulls down my panties and spanks me hard with a plastic hairbrush. I hate him for it.

I'm 16 and I don't think teenagers should be spanked, but Dad disagrees. I get a lot of whacks. Is this right? — BURNING BOTTOM

DEAR B.B.:

No, this isn't right, and if your mother doesn't realize it, she's pretty obtuse. Talk it over with her.

You need discipline, but not barebottom spankings from a father who might say, if he were honest, "This pleases me more than it does you." — HELEN

B.B.:

Punishment is for discipline and discipline is for teaching. Since these spankings don't stop you from sneaking out, they're useless and ugly.

Now, let's talk about the boy: Is he the type most parents would hate? Do you really like him or are you just getting even with your folks? Did you sneak out mainly so you'd be caught and "whacked," and thus build a bigger case against your father?

Or maybe you don't mind those spankings as much as you say. If you did, you'd try to avoid them, right? — SUE

DEAR RAP:

I'm 13 and in big trouble. A couple of months ago my cousin and I went to a rock festival in New York. My parents said I could go, just so I didn't smoke and drink.

The next day we all got drunk. So now I'm pregnant (at least I think so) and my cousin, who's 21, is the father. My folks think I'm a baby. How can I tell them I'm going to have one? — HOPELESS

HOPELESS:

How can you get help if you don't tell your parents? If you can't face them, then contact the Planned Parenthood Association in your town and they will advise you, or perhaps act as go-betweens. — HELEN

HOPELESS:

Parents who let their 13-year-old daughters go to overnight rock festivals shouldn't be surprised when their little girls grow up fast. Since they're partly to blame for your pregnancy, they'd just better help you through, or out of, it. That goes for your 21-year-old cousin too! — SUE

RAP:

Re "Against the Ms. Biz," if "Ms." sounds like the buzzing of an insect, then "Miss" and "Mrs." sound like the hissings of a snake. She says she wants "to be protected by men." Against what? Other women? — HAPPY SISTER

DEAR RAP:

About the Ms.-Mrs.-Miss controversy:

In Shakespearean times and earlier, all women were addressed as "Mistress." I think that's euphonious, romantic, and even a little sexy. "Mrs." and "Miss" are discriminatory and nothing but chopped-off versions of "Mistress," but they don't sound nearly so good. So why not call us all "Mistress?" I like the idea of the "Ms." title, but it's so damned ugly! — KDP

MISTRESS K:

Somehow I don't think it will catch on, but thanks for writing. — HELEN

Eye Puffiness Can Be Corrected

Puffiness under the eyes can be corrected by using a darker tone of makeup than normally used on the puffed area. blend it at the edges and then apply normal base makeup, and pat on powder to eliminate any shiny highlights, which only emphasize the puffiness, says makeup authority Max Factor.

Girl Scout Cadette Gathering Held

SAN RAFAEL policeman Gene Pennington (left) showed Cadette Girl Scout Pamela Carter of San Rafael a trick to ward off an attacker during a workshop in female self defense at the fifth annual Marin County Cadette Encampment held Friday through yesterday at the Arequipa Bothin Girl Scout complex in Fairfax.

"The 20th Century Woman" was the theme for the fifth annual Marin County Cadette Encampment Friday through yesterday at the Arequipa Bothin Girl Scout complex in Fairfax.

The more than 300 junior high school age Cadette Girl Scouts represented every community in Marin County.

Rain moved some activities inside, but workshops were held in archery, campcraft, first aid, guitar, judo, swimming and diving, tumbling, backpacking and hiking, creative writing and poetry, folk dancing, modern dancing, basketry, gourmet cooking, knitting and crocheting, macrame, terrarium, creative stitchery, jewelry, leather work and mosaics.

Each troop picked its favorite decade of the century — past, present or future — and prepared costumes, songs, sayings and dances to typify the decade for a talent show Sunday afternoon. The 50s was the most popular choice, according to Carmel Kirkwood of Novato, chairman of the encampment.

GUESTS WILL be thankful: Kate Gaydos, AID, transformed this extra bedroom into a relaxing and beguiling reading room and guest room. She based the theme on colors found in Lees' "Temple Bell" plush carpet and in the floral fabric used to upholster the simple daybed. It's a room a guest would feel at home in, especially since the bedroom-look hardly exists.

Simplicity Best When Preparing A Room To Accommodate Guests

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
Distributed by General Features

If you've been an overnight guest in a friend's home, you'll agree with the notion that simplicity is best. On several occasions I've been ensconced in elaborate bedrooms dripping with draperies, laden with pillows and art objects. When the time came to put out my own bits of paraphernalia, there was no room for anything. So I appreciate other visits where the hostess has done some preplanning on my behalf and provided things I really need.

In fact, one friend has a system for setting up guest rooms. She wheels a little cart into the extra room. On it are facial tissues, a magnifying mirror, a portable radio, a tray for sundries, a stack of face and bath towels, scented soap, deodorant soap and a supply of moistened paper towelettes for emergencies.

SHE ALSO provides a rack or small table where a suitcase can be set without danger of scratching wood chests. And her final touches are usually a delightful book of poetry and an extra lap robe or shawl.

How is the room furnished? I can hardly remember — except that the bed is comfortable.

Most guests respond to thoughtfulness in the little comforts. Remember there are plenty of fancy hotel rooms one can stay in; but a visit in a private home is something else.

THE ROOM illustrated today would hardly be described as minimal, yet it's not overpowering in decorative motif. Designed by Kate Gaydos, AID, it depends on cheerful floral upholstery and bright carpet by Lees to carry the color theme. Everything else is subdued, including the textured wall covering and sprightly curtains.

Sometimes carpeting can set the mood. For example, Lees' "Temple Bell" line of plush textured carpeting comes in 19 colors — from pastels to canary, amethyst, lime-sherbert and blue jay.

President Forces Congress' Hand

Last July 25, Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, told reporters:

"The president is very confident of his constitutional position. . . and the president fully expects his position to be upheld in the courts. Of course the president, as in any other matter would abide by a definitive decision of the highest court."

The president's position to which Warren referred was his refusal to release tape records of White House conversations bearing on the Watergate break-in and other campaign activities. The Senate Watergate committee and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox were both suing to force him to make the tapes available.

All that was last July.

LAST SATURDAY, President Nixon, his confidence that his position would be upheld by the courts severely shaken after both district and appellate courts ruled he could not withhold the tapes from the special prosecutor, moved to prevent that "definitive decision of the highest court."

He ordered Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox fired and his office abolished.

When Atty. Gen. Elliott L. Richardson refused to fire Cox, the president forced Richardson to resign. When Richardson's assistant, William Ruckelshaus, also refused to fire the special prosecutor, Nixon fired him. Then the president found a man who would do his bidding: Solicitor Gen. Robert Bork, third in the Justice Department hierarchy.

Bork fired Cox and abolished his office.

RICHARD M. NIXON thus completed his defiance of the Senate and his own Justice Department. He made it perfectly clear that his interpretation of the doctrine of separation of powers is that the president is untouchable.

He thus threw down the gauntlet.

As Congress resumed session today, there were men in the House of Representatives — of both parties — ready to set in motion the machinery for impeachment of the president.

The constitutional confrontation which Mr. Nixon had repeatedly said he sought to avoid had been forced — by him.

And he has further compounded that confrontation.

He hurled his defiance at the judicial system as the nation was without a vice president. Mr. Nixon's two-time choice as running mate, Spiro T. Agnew, had resigned in the midst of scandal involving him as a hand-in-the-pocket politician, taking payoffs for state contracts. Mr. Nixon's choice as Agnew's successor, Rep. Gerald T. Ford of Michigan, has not yet been confirmed — nor is he likely to be as a result of the president's week-end actions.

RESPONSIBLE congressmen and senators have tried to avoid the horrors of an impeachment proceeding. They know the situation of the administration is bad enough without that.

But President Nixon has left them little choice.

State-Provided Housing For Employees Scrutinized

By EARL G. WATERS

Disclosure that homes costing in excess of $50,000 are being provided state workers at rentals of $106 a month or less has prompted the State Board of Control to review its rates. It also suggests the need for review of the overall policy of furnishing employee housing.

That it is costing what seems to be excessive amounts was revealed by Delwyn Roberts, Transportation Department maintenance official. He told the board residences are costing upwards of $50,000 to construct, not including the land. Similar costs were reported by other departments. Altogether more than 3,000 employees are provided homes at low rentals or, as in the case of the university, no rent at all.

Baring of these facts prompted board member Lew Clingan to request the departments to justify their needs to furnish employee housing.

A PERIPHERY investigation indicates that in some operations there is a benefit to the state, while in other cases there is none. In the latter situations the homes become something of a perquisite and amount to added compensation. This violates the principle, and perhaps the law, requiring equal compensation to all performing the same duties.

A strong case for housing in connection with highway maintenance can be made. By having resident employees, road closures can be more promptly remedied. This provides better service to the public at less cost. Forestry and Fish and Game also meet the test of isolated stations for the most part, and in a few cases this appears to be true with Parks.

But aside from those situations, most of the housing falls into the category of "because it's there". In earlier days there was a need to provide housing at locales where none existed. But the reasons which were valid then are no longer. This is the situation with the state hospitals, prisons and colleges.

The suggestion has been made that where the homes are on land which could easily be severed from the institutions, they should be declared excess and sold. It has also been proposed that homes at prisons could be used for inmate programs such as the week-end communal visitations.

Some think there should be a policy to phase out all housing not essential to state operations. Others continue to justify employee housing on the grounds that having the employees live on the facility gives protection to the property. Their case seems weak since there is no assurance the employee will actually be present in an emergency.

EVEN JUSTIFIABLE situations such as highway maintenance outstations are being closely examined because of the high costs. Some agencies, including highways, have turned to mobile homes as an alternative. But they are not cheap either. Fish and Game reported spending $34,000 for two mobile homes. Additional expenses involved are building a footing for the homes and providing utility lines, and usually walks and drives.

It appears that the Board of Control is heading for two standard of rental schedules, one where there is a clear justification to provide housing and another where it is a fringe benefit to the employee.

But the board cannot determine the overall policy of whether there shall be housing. That will take higher authority. The increasing costs of the homes indicate the time for that is now.

"This leak you're reporting, lady: is it coming from a reliable and unimpeachable source?"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Proposition One Seen As Threat To Controls

The homeowners' recent victory (SB 90) which brought some relief in property taxes is in danger and may be short lived.

If the economic trend of the past 10 years continues as projected by the proponents of Proposition One, a declining percentage of personal income tax can only result in an increase in local taxes. This follows from the restrictive language of the initiative which makes it easier for local government rather than state government to increase taxes.

Two provisions of Proposition One facilitate a shift of taxation from the state to the local level. First, all taxes except local sales taxes would be subject to a two-thirds vote of the legislature. Second, the governing boards of local entities would be able to increase property tax rates for two years by a four-fifths vote for an emergency situation. Coupled with a constitutional mandate that the income tax be based on a declining percentage of personal income, the intent of the law is obvious.

I believe that some parameters are needed to protect the usable part of the dollar. I do not believe that concurrent shift in taxation would benefit the homeowner, senior citizen, and the inflated economy of Marin. A "No" vote on Proposition One will protect the recent victory which resulted in a lowering of property taxes.

Spending Limitation Is Long Overdue

The United Organizations of Taxpayers Inc. previously endorsed and is now actively supporting proposition 1, the tax and expenditure limitation constitutional amendment on the ballot Nov. 6.

Our organization, a statewide, nonpartisan, non-profit, voluntary association of taxpayers, submit that the crucial question is: will the people of California assume control of their own state government or surrender their future lives and earnings to the whims of spending politicans? California is one of few states where the people can, by their votes, enact a constitutional amendment to guarantee their government will stay a government of, by and for the people instead of a government of, by and for the politicians.

We should have learned by now unless the people hold tight control over government, government will hold tight control over the people. Government lives by taking taxes from the earnings of the people and unless the people decide what that limit will be, there will be no limit. . . .

Proposition 1 sets a definite limit.

In complete honesty, we say to voters this amendment is not a law for the rich, nor is this law a political ploy, nor will it raise property taxes. It is a law conceived in fairness to make our tax system workable, equitable and livable for all of our people. It is a long overdue law. It is a law to put a reasonable limit on how much of your earnings politicians can take from you in taxation whether you like it or not. . .

When Will We Learn Resources Are Finite?

How long are we going to go on wasting our resources before we face the inescapable fact that these resources are not infinite? We have been called a nation of inordinate consumers. (According to Webster, "consume" means to "use up, waste, destroy," as well as to "drink or eat up.") Who would have dreamed a year ago that we would be standing in line at gas stations, or finding them closed on week-ends? And when we say "Fill her up," being told, "Seven-gallon limit today." Living in a land of plenty we have been encouraged to use as much as we like of water and electricity. The time may come, and sooner than we think, when we shall have to choose between having a refrigerator or a freezer, and to give up dishwashers, rotisseries, waffle irons, and all sorts of favorite appliances.

. . . This November Marin voters are going to be asked whether or not they want to put a down-payment on a long-term expenditure to bring water from the north through Sonoma County's pipes and eventually from the Russian River. Should we take this expensive, questionable, and environmentally damaging way to increase our water supply for a limited time? More water brings more building, more building brings a limited number of jobs, and then . . . . we are all left to cope with the smog, the pollution, the shrunken space, and the bills. Then we shall be looking for more water. . .

U.S. Citizens Cannot Have Foreign Allegiance

Why do we have so many young people (of voting age) who seem to know nothing of history, the constitution, citizenship, etc? My question is due to their questions, brought about due to recent events.

I find many of them (Jewish) who believe they can have a dual citizenship (the U.S. and Israel). The oath of allegiance to the United States tells us that we owe our allegiance to one country (indivisible) and one flag.

It would be nice to see the oath of allegiance printed in our daily paper once in a while, just as a reminder, to they who need reminding!

We owe a debt of gratitude to a great Jewish patriot, Haym Saloman, who loaned our "budding" government hundreds of thousands of dollars, only a portion of which was returned to him! He gave this money as a citizen of our government. His rights, and the rights of all Jewish people, are the same in America as the rights of all citizens, including descendants of the pirates of Tripoli, or immigrants of any other Arab country. If any seek citizenship and are worthy, all are considered equal.

Should we "take sides" in the present conflict, it would result in the loss of Arabian oil to the United States, crippling our industries and reducing our mechanization in manufacturing & transportation, both domestic and in the military. We would all lose, regardless of our ethnic sympathies.

Stay In Hospital Results In Praise

I have recently completed a two-week stay at Marin General Hospital. I simply can't express my appreciation to the very dedicated nurses who took care of me on the third floor surgery department. There was absolutely nothing they would not do to help keep a patient comfortable, happy and extremely well cared for. They really deserve praise for the excellent job they do —both day and night.

I would also like to express my pleasure with the excellent and tasty meals they serve. Marin General Hospital is certainly to be praised for the services they perform.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

It's beginning to look like Gerald Ford may be too non-controversial to make a good vice president.

The trouble with "Ford" is that it's a household word.

The only skeleton Congress could find in Gerry's closet was the fact that he was appointed by President Nixon.

This was supposed to be the big opportunity for Congress to veto the president, but Dick double-crossed 'em.

Gerry proved his patriotism by being willing to step down as a congressional leader to become a mere vice president.

American Military Training Shows Up In Middle East War

WASHINGTON — The way the Pentagon has trained the world's army chiefs is pointed up by what is happening in the newest Middle East war. The Egyptians' initial battlefield successes owe a lot to that training.

Lt. Gen. Sasdeddin Shazli, chief of staff of the Egyptian forces, recognized as a brilliant strategist, received a key component of his military education at Fort Benning, Ga., and Fort Lee, Va. The paratroop, air drop and air transport courses he took in 1953 were the initial impetus for the airborne tactics he employed in getting his troops across the Suez Canal and into the mountain passes threatening the Israeli stronghold of Sharm el Sheik.

Widely recognized not only for his generalship but for his zeal in endowing the Egyptian armies with the will to fight, Shazli embodies in his person the superpower confrontation in the Middle East. Following his training in the United States, he commanded a paratoop unit in the Suez crisis of 1956 when Britain, France and Israel attacked Egypt while the United States joined the Soviet Union and Arab elements in opposing the invasion, which was halted by United Nations action. The following year, after promotion to lieutenant colonel, Shazli went to Moscow for further training.

TOP MILITARY MEN from South Vietnam, Greece, Thailand, Yugoslavia, Saudi Arabia and many other countries, including Israel, have had the rigorous, highly effective course at Benning. Following their workout in all aspects of airborne warfare they are given VIP tours around the country. Hardly a day goes by that colonels and majors, often in the gaudy uniforms of Latin America, are not being trotted around to see the sights of Washington.

The Chilean generals received extensive American help on the scene in Santiago prior to the coup that overthrew the Marxist government of Salvador Allende. This was done through the Military Assistance Program. As Washington cut down on economic aid to the Allende regime, military aid rose rapidly.

That the United States trains forces that are often the agents of repression is hardly a secret to public opinion in those countries where the tough military hold the line. In Thailand, as a recent example, the military shot down hundreds of student protesters before the government then in power with military backing surrendered to overwhelming opposition.

The American role in providing technical skills for the military supporting law and order for the regimes in power has contributed to the alienation not only of the left but often of those in the middle believing that hope of democratic change is denied by the men with the guns. This feeling is reinforced in some instances by the training given through Agency for International Development programs to public safety and police forces.

AID PROVIDES 14 to 17 weeks of training at the International Police Academy in Washington. A recent graduating course included Thais, Filipinos, South Koreans, South Vietnamese and Chileans. Courses are conducted for senior police officers and for those at the middle management level. In some cases — Saudi Arabia is one — the country pays all the costs. Latin-American trainees have come from Uruguay, Bolivia, Colombia and Ecuador.

Although AID has sent 4,661 police from 75 countries through the course. the $7.4 million in the fiscal 1974 budget is the lowest figure in the history of the program as are all other AID allocations in a record-low request.

As a star Benning graduate, Shazli made many friends among his American classmates. They sent him congratulations when in 1971 he became chief of staff of the Egyptian forces, the youngest ever to hold that post. In President Anwar Sadat's purge of the military, he replaced Lt. Gen. Mohammed Sadek.

One of the few to distinguish himself in the Egyptian rout during the six-day war in 1967, Shazli was among the last to leave the Sinai Peninsula, swimming across the canal to escape capture. As an official of the Arab League he has passionately preached the cause of Arabism.

The thousands of officers passing through the Benning course learn a lot about American military technique. What they may learn about American attitudes and belief is another matter.

Flying Saucers? Of Course, But What Do They Want Here

WASHINGTON — I happen to be one of those people who believes that the unidentified flying objects which have been reported seen whizzing around the United States are for real. But, like so many people, I have no idea what they want from the United States at this point in time.

I sought out some of the most learned men in this country to find out if they had any theories.

PROF. HEINRICH APPLEBAUM of the Watergate Observatory told me: "This is just speculation, of course, but I wouldn't be surprised if they're trying to make a wheat deal with the United States. They saw what a good contract the Russians made with us and they figure they could do the same thing."

"But why would they need wheat?" I asked.

"If you will look through this telescope you'll see that there is not too much growing out there. You have to assume that whoever they are, they have to import most of their wheat. They probably were buying their wheat from another planet until they got word that they could get our wheat much cheaper."

DR. FITZHUGH FEELINGHOUSE of the Society for the Preservation of High Sulphur Content in Fuel disagreed. "I am under the impression they want to buy oil from us. We have to assume that if they're from outer space and can make it all the way here, they are a highly industrialized society. Therefore, they must be short on fuel. I am almost certain they've come to discuss the feasibility of building a pipeline to their planet."

"But why the United States?" I asked. "We don't have oil to sell to anyone."

"They don't know that," Dr. Feelinghouse said. "All they've seen from their telescopes are our neon signs advertising Exxon, Gulf, Texaco and BP gasoline. They probably figure we have the stuff coming out of our ears."

"But if they're so sophisticated scientifically, why would they need oil in the first place? Aren't there other sources of power available to creatures from outer space?"

"Probably. But if their oil companies are like ours, they've discouraged the use of other fuels. I imagine even in outer space you can't lick the oil companies."

JEREMY SAITHERWAITE, a political scientist at the Institute of Paranoia, is very skeptical about the UFOs coming from another galaxy.

"I think Nixon is trying to get our minds off his domestic troubles by whipping up a flying saucer scare," he said.

"But how could he swing it? Surely you can't launch a flying saucer from somewhere in the United States without someone knowing about it."

"Why do you think he sent those three astronauts up to Skylab for 59 days?"

"You mean they were sent up there to launch the flying saucers from space?"

"You better believe it," he said.

"Wait a minute. The two Mississippians who were captured described the creatures in the UFO as being green, with no eyes, and a stub in the middle of their faces which could have been a nose. How could they look like that?"

Saitherwaite replied, "How you ever heard of Nixon's make-up man from the 1960 campaign?"

THE FINAL EXPERT I spoke to was Prof. Charles Simolli, a sociologist, who said, "The most interesting thing is that most of the UFO sightings have been in the South."

"What are you driving at?" I asked.

"Has it ever occurred to you that all these poor creatures from outer space are trying to do is bus their kids to a good school?"

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By THERON NEWELL

Novato On Way To Becoming A North Bay Financial Center?

The opening of Northern California Savings in the Downtown Shopping Center of Novato moves Novato one step closer to becoming a financial center of the North Bay.

The city now has six banks and three savings and loans. It is second in Marin County only to San Rafael, which has eight banks and six savings and loans.

It seems strange that Novato can support so many banks, service stations, quick order restaurants and supermarkets, but has a hard time getting good retail stores.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES ended his poem of the "Wonderful One Horse Shay" with the line, "Logic is logic, that's all I say."

Well, the logic of Holmes's day must have gone the way of the one-horse shay.

For example, the City of Novato is attempting to stop scarring of its hillsides by making larger lot sizes. There is one parcel of 18 acres off Cherry Street that is a steep hillside. It was zoned one dwelling unit per acre. Let's see what happened.

The city council approved a plan for 18 houses for the land. But instead of being on one-acre lots, they were on undersized 6,000 square foot lots and clustered together on three acres in the flatter lower part of the land. The remaining 15 acres will be given to the city for open space.

As one would figure it, that is six houses per acre and all the lots undersized for single-family residential. By the same logic, if a person had 100 acres of a very steep hillside with one acre usable, he could put 100 houses on an acre.

The subdivider of the land off Cherry Street not only got higher density than single-family, he promised to give the remaining 15 acres to the city for open space. Note, he said open space, not a park. It is too steep to be a park.

Of course by doing that, the developer gets off the hook for the unusable land and it goes off the tax roll. The city then has the responsibility of it.

That area burns off about every three years. Firemen find it best to take a fire road to the top and fight the fire from there rather than try to go up the steep hill.

WHICH BRINGS UP the question of just how valuable are these areas of open space? The City of Novato has accepted some ridiculous little areas in out-of-the-way places in the name of open space. This gets the developer out of the roll of maintaining the land, paying taxes on it, and being responsible for it.

How much liability does the city have if there are bodily injuries on these hillsides? Who is going to pay the cost of fires?

It boils down to the fact that the developer is the one who gains. The taxpayer loses. There are fewer taxes coming in for schools, fire fighting, sanitary services, water servce, city and county governments. Then it costs the taxpayer again in the cost of maintaining these areas and furnishing fire protection for them.

Marin Alternative To Discuss Tax Initiative

Election reform and Proposition 1, the tax revenue limitation measure on the Nov. 6 ballot, will be discussed at the monthly meeting of Marin Alternative at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday in Room 101 of the science building, College of Marin, Kentfield.

The organization's election reform task force will present a model ordinance for county and city elections. It includes public financing of campaign, conflict of interest prohibitions and limits on campaign spending.

The governor's tax limit proposal will be discussed by Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Oakland, a member of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee and an opponent of the measure.

The chairman of Marin Alternative, Jonathan C. Lewis of Terra Linda, said the Sacramento office of the citizens' group supporting the measure "refused to appear on the platform with anyone opposing the governor's tax plan."

Kidnaped Eagle To Return Home

SAN FRANCISCO (API) —A rare Spanish imperial eagle, mysteriously kidnaped from a bird preserve in Spain, will be returned to its home.

The 12-pound, two-foot high bird named Vie, one of only 100 of its species, was captured by state agents who thought they were chasing the owners of an illegal hawk in nearby Hayward several months ago.

Agents said they were pursuing a car when Vie was released and flew from the car's window. Agents of the state Fish and Game Department halted the chase and rescued Vie.

Since then, the bird has been kept at secret locations because of anonymous telephone threats against her. But officials say they are at a loss at reasons for the threats—or why Vie was birdnaped.

Fig Leaf Found Rough Wearing

LONDON (UPI) —If Adam really wore a fig leaf, a British doctor said Monday, then he had real problems.

Dr. Thomas Smith wore one himself as a test of the old story, and reported that a fig leaf has a ... well, its ... its rough like sandpaper on the underside.

"I tied the leaf around my waist with a piece of string and I was most surprised at my findings," he said.

Freedom Award To Columnist In I-J

Earl G. Waters, whose Sacramento column appears twice weekly on the Independent-Journal's editorial page, has been named winner of its 1973 Freedom of Information Award by the Central California chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity.

Michael Otten, awards chairman, said Waters was honored for forcing disclosure of the contractual arrangement the University of California board of regents made secretly with U.C. President Charles J. Hitch.

When his requests to see the contract were denied by Hitch and the regents, Waters retained legal counsel and sued to enforce the public's right to know.

The regents then made the records available, disclosing that Hitch received, in addition to $52,500 annual salary, a home valued in excess of $1 million, servants, a limousine and chauffeur and $15,000 per year living expense allowance. Waters reported the total compensation "is more than $150,000 a year."

Parliament May Remain In Session

Labor MP Willie Hamilton, a critic of the royal family, said he was being joined by other lawmakers in opposing any move to close Parliament for the wedding next month.

Bike Accident Brings Red Tape

LATROBE, Pa. (UPI) —The Pennsylvania Transportation Department has told Oran Eberhart, 6, to be sure to include his correct operators license number when he files a required report on a bicycle accident.

Last July Oran borrowed a bicycle from his girlfriend, Michelle Taylor, 5, and bumped into her with it on a city street. The girl suffered a bruised knee.

Oran's father, Paul, said last night the local hospital required Oran to file an accident report with the Latrobe police, as required by law, before treating Michelle.

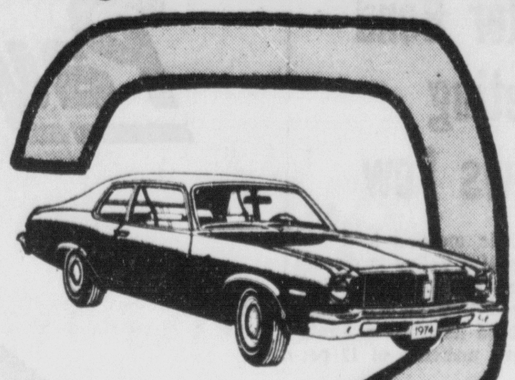

Now, Oran has a request from the Transportation Department's Bureau of Accident Analysis to file a complete report on the affair.

"I have a notion to let him fill it out and send it back," Oran's father said.

Heavenly Flag Symbols

With its six-pointed star, the Israeli flag so often in the news these days is only one of many flags around the world featuring astronomical symbols. Our flag with its 50 stars is, of course, another. Stars are a common flag motif: Australia and New Zealand both make use of the Southern Cross, the famous constellation of the Southern Hemisphere. Some Arab nations use the crescent moon, long a symbol of Islam. The sun is also popular; the new nation of Bangladesh has a dark green flag with a red sun symbolizing the end of darkness after a bloody struggle.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the six-pointed star on Israel's flag called?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — The House and Senate must approve an appointed Vice President.

Water Bond Meeting Draws Few

A public meeting held last night in Mill Valley to discuss the Marin Municipal Water District's controversial $7.5 million water bond issue drew a rain-splattered audience of 12 persons.

Panelists skipped from topic to topic in response to questions from the audience at the Outdoor Art Club, concentrating on technical and engineering aspects of the proposal.

Voters in the water district's service area are being asked Nov. 6 to provide $7.5 million in bonds to build the second stage of a four-stage project to import water from the Russian River in Sonoma County. Some 8,000 acre-feet of water could be imported annually if the measure passes.

John MacPhail Jr., a member of the water district board and one of the panelists, disputed an Independent-Journal editorial of Oct. 2, which questioned the wisdom of the investment, asserting: "Sonoma County can 'turn off the tap' any time it needs the water itself."

"We will have a legally binding contract with them," MacPhail said, adding that Marin would have "a vested interest."

Another panelist, water district manager of engineering J. Dietrich Stroeh, repeated the district off-made point that if the third stage is built, the district will be limited to 13,400 acre-feet of water under its contract with the Sonoma County Water Agency. He also reminded his audience that though the proposed pipes have a capacity of 22,000 acre-feet, they may be used only eight months out of the year.

The third panelist, Mrs. W. J. Lloyd of the Marin Conservation League, expressed reservations about the project, saying that "the only responsible long-range policy is one of conservation and waste water reclamation," rather than importation; that the project's environmental impact is more vast than commonly recognized since it involves five countries and two river basins (the Russian and the Eel); and that its "growth-inducing impact" on Sonoma County is great and must be considered by Marinites.

Whether or not the current moratorium on new water connections will be lifted if the measure passes "depends on how you play the numbers game," MacPhail said. Connections already authorized but not yet made will draw between 300 and 3,500 acre-feet annually. There would be excess water, and thus no need for a moratorium, at the smaller figure but not at the larger, he said. Water board figures show that the amount of water available after passage of the proposal will exceed current demand by 2,500 acre-feet.

The meeting was sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Southern Marin, the Mill Valley branch of the American Association of University Women, and the Outdoor Art Club.

A Budget Snag Seen For HEW

BEDFORD, Pa. (UPI) —Rep. Patsy Mink, D-Hawaii, said last night "American education is on the threshhold of revolutionary changes," but complained it was unlikely Congress would be able to enact an acceptable budget for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for fiscal 1974.

"We have all failed to make the public understand the yearly increases in the cost of education," said Mrs. Mink, a member of the House Education and Labor Committee.

Speaking at a banquet, she said American educators were on the verge of accepting such changes as operating schools in quarters all year round and using schools in the evenings as community centers for persons of all ages.

HEADING HOME — Seen through the window of a rescue truck, a four-wheel-drive Jeep travels down a rain-slogged fire road after picking up eight shivering and wet boy scouts lost since Saturday on a backpack and compass-reading expedition from Fairfax to Camp Tamarancho, about 2.5 miles north.

SCOUTS RESCUED

A Cold, Windy Ordeal Is Over

By PAUL LIBERATORE

"I think we'll work a little harder now to learn to read the compass," 15-year-old David Clark said yesterday after he and seven other East Bay boy scouts survived 48 hours of chilling rain and driving winds lost in mountainous terrain near Fairfax.

The boys were blue-lipped, soaked to the skin and shivering but otherwise in good health and high spirits when they were rescued at 11:30 a.m. by Marin County firemen near the crest of Pine Mountain east of Kent Lake.

After meetings with anxious parents, the boys, aged 11 to 15, received hot showers, steaming cocoa and dry clothes at the Meadow Club above Fairfax before heading home.

"The fog came rolling in Saturday and we couldn't see White's Hill to get our bearings," said Clark, patrol leader from Troop 109 from El Cerrito.

The scouts left the Meadow Club about 10:30 a.m. Saturday on a backpack and compass test expedition to Tamarancho, the scout camp about 2.5 miles north.

But shortly after lunch, they became confused in the fog and took a wrong turn that led them over a ridge above Kent Lake instead of around White's Hill as they had planned.

They reached one trail marker that had been set out beforehand. They never got to the second. A group of older scouts on a longer cross-country trek reached Tamarancho at 3 p.m.

Kenneth Riep, father of one of the lost youths drove a jeep on a firetrail above Tamarancho when the younger scouts failed to make the camp by 4 p.m. "I was almost out of gas and gave up looking for them at 8:30," Riep said.

The scouts spent Saturday night relatively warmly and comfortably on a beach at Kent Lake. But morning rains drenched their sleeping bags and other gear as they set out toward Pine Mountain.

They spent Sunday night huddled together for warmth beneath six sleeping bags that were dry enough to use. A lean-to of canvas and branches was blown down by heavy winds that searchers said reached 100 miles per hour on the southeastern slope of Pine Mountain yesterday morning.

LOST BOYS FOUND — Scout Emanuel Herscovic (center), and another scout (back to camera), head for hot showers and dry clothes after their dramatic rescue from forbidding Pine Mountain near Fairfax yesterday. Herscovic was one of eight El Cerrito scouts lost since Saturday when they made a wrong turn on a compass reading.

"It was a real lonely place," said tow-headed Emanuel Herskovic, 12. "Whenever we yelled for help, and I hollered pretty loud because I was scared, it would echo and double back."

"I knew we would get out," added Erik Sorensen, 13, "but I didn't know when and I didn't want to spend another night."

The boys left a clear trail of food wrappings and camp gear that led searchers near their encampment late Sunday. Firemen in four-wheel-drive vehicles sounded sirens and yelled from loud speakers and the scouts signalled in return with flashlights.

"I knew we were close to them," said fireman James Selfridge. "But the fog was coming in and it was getting dark so we decided we would have a better chance of finding them in the morning."

Fireman Richard Testa did, with Selfridge and five others only minutes behind. "The kids did all right," said Testa. "It's a good thing they didn't move too far."

A mass of searchers huddled at rescue headquarters at the Meadow Club yesterday morning, ready to march in on foot if the scouts were not located by noon. An army helicopter also was at the ready, but swirling winds and poor visibility kept it on the ground.

Standing by were more than 30 coast guardsmen, Synanon residents, county firemen and sheriff's deputies. Sheriff's Capt. Harvey Teague coordinated rescue efforts from the command post.

The boys said they spent most of their time trying to keep a fire going to keep warm. "We used manzanita, brush, poison oak, anything we could find.

As 13-year-old James McCracken sat shivering in a car following the rescue, he said: "I guess I spent a lot of time thinking about how much our parents would be worried about us."

$6,500 Raised In Cash For Israeli Support

About $6,500 in cash was raised by the Friends of Israel in Marin for the Jewish Welfare Federation's Israel emergency fund at a dinner Sunday at Congregation Rodef Sholom in Santa Venetia.

Dr. Gideon Y. Sorokin, chief speaker and chairman of the affair, said approximately 300 persons attended. Sorokin, a reserve lieutenant in the Israeli Air Force and a Marin veterinarian, told the gathering the outnumbered Israelis don't have a chance against the Arabs without support from the free world.

Other speakers included Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, who said that, for the first time since World War II, he found himself wholeheartedly in support of a nation in war and hoped for complete victory for the Israelis.

Corte Madera Plan Would Save Small-Town Character

By BILL ROBERTS

Meeting local and regional public demands while preserving the "small-town scale and character" of Corte Madera should be the town's purpose according to the preliminary draft of its new general plan.

The town could lose its individual scale and character, however, as an eventual merger of Corte Madera and Larkspur is recommended in the plan.

And of more immediate importance is the plan's recommendation that a regional shopping center be built on the 45-acre Hahn site east of Highway 101 which affects several elements of the plan.

Prepared by planning consultants Sedway-Cooke of San Francisco, the draft outlines specific policies and programs for preserving the town's character. The dictionary-sized document was prepared after town council, planning commission and a 47-member citizen's advisory committee conferred with the planners for over a year.

The plan includes in its area of study the Tiburon Peninsula ridge and three unincorporated areas west of Highway 101 because of increased pressure for development adjacent to town corporate limits.

The plan's major policies are preservation of open space along ridgetops and shoreline, access to open space areas by bicycle and hiking trails, limiting growth but including new areas for "family-oriented and moderate cost housing" neighborhood level service areas throughout town and a single regional shopping center, upgrading and possibly consolidating community facilities and encouraging public interest.

Specific plans for realizing these policies are included in the plan's seven elements: land use; open space and conservation; housing; community services and commercial facilities; circulation; seismic and public safety; and community appearance and environmental quality.

The open space and conservation element of the plan calls for land acquisition in the planning area to supplement the "relatively few" parks and recreation areas in southern and central Marin.

The plan recommends general obligation bonds as the major source for funding open space purchases. County, state and federal funds, special assessment districts and redevelopment financing are given as alternate sources. Zoning techniques are suggested to gain open space lands within developers' projects.

High priority areas for open space acquisition are an 11-acre salt marsh along Paradise Drive, 8.7-acre site west of All Faiths Church, Muzzi property filled lands, Heerdt marsh filled lands, two areas along Corte Madera Creek, Menke Park near the center of town and 28.5 acres of undeveloped land near the Koch luggage plant.

The housing element outlines areas for future development and notes ways to secure low and moderate income housing.

The plan recommends that housing sites be developed one at a time with development of subsequent projects beginning only after those ahead of them on the priority list are completed. An unincorporated site west of Tamal Vista Boulevard, the Madera del Presidio townhouse area, the site adjacent to All Faiths Church and the Koch site are the top priorities.

Density bonuses for developers who provide low and moderate income housing and allowing additions to existing structures if they are reserved for low and moderate income people are given as ways to encourage such housing.

The plan envisages increases in community services including police and fire to parallel community growth. Consolidation of the town's two fire stations in one unit near San Clement and Tamalpais drives is recommended.

Police, fire and recreation departments of Corte Madera should be consolidated with those of Larkspur to increase service to both communities and as a first step toward consolidation into a single entity, according to the plan.

Commercial development is considered a community service and the plan recommends building a regional shopping center on the 45-acre Hahn site east of Highway 101. The area is called "low priority" for recreational uses and "not suitable" for residential purposes.

Expansion of Highway 101 from six to eight lanes from Richardson Bay Bridge to Highway 37 south of Novato is recommended in the plan's circulation element along with elimination of all freeway on and off ramps between Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Tamalpais Drive. A pedestrian overpass between the proposed shopping center and the existing center west of Highway 101 and freeway ramps serving the new center are proposed.

Some street improvements within town limits are proposed but the report strongly urges that local streets not be improved to the point at which they serve as freeway and congested road bypasses for commuters.

Development should be prohibited in areas with slope greater than 40 per cent, closely regulated on slope between 20 and 40 per cent and also regulated in areas underlain by bay mud, according to the seismic and public safety element.

Zoning regulation should be the main method of controlling such development, the report said. It also advocated creation of a new review board to review developments on sites "which exhibit hazardous conditions."

The community appearance and environmental quality element calls on the California Division of Highways to report on noise levels on Highway 101 which is called the major "noise source" in the town. It also recommends no ridgetop development and close scrutiny of shoreline development.

The provisions of the aforementioned elements are combined to form the town's "land use pattern" which makes up the final element.

The plan's preliminary draft does not include final recommendations for change from the citizen's advisory committee which reviewed the draft last week and will meet again Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in town hall. The recommendations of the citizen's group will then be incorporated into the plan and a final draft will be submitted to the council for approval.

Councilman Robert J. Flahive said the council will probably set a schedule for public hearings on the plan at its Nov. 5 meeting.

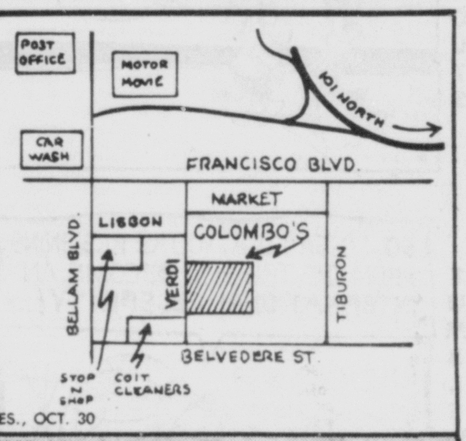

According to Flahive, the open space element previously reached the council but it took no action on it when cities were given until Jan. 1, 1974, to approve their general plans.

Correct Name Of Man In Robbery

A San Francisco robber, to be sentenced Nov. 12 in Marin County Superior Court, was erroneously identified in Saturday's Independent-Journal as Kingsley Wayne Shew. The correct name is Kingsley Wayne Chew.

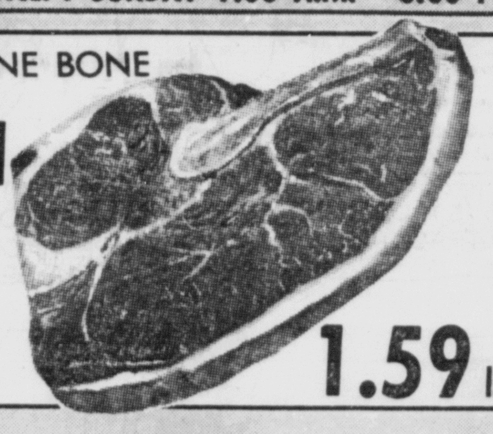

He and two accomplices taking money from a floor safe and the manager of the Kentucky Fried Chicken store in San Rafael March 9 after threatening the manager, his wife, a daughter and a customer with a gun.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Sure Thing Play Always Beats Speculation On Tricks

Are you interested in safety or in speculation? You might give a different answer to your stockbroker, but at the bridge table you should settle for safety.

LOW HEART

West opens a low heart, and you capture the queen with your ace. You are then sure of three hearts, one diamond (the ace), and four clubs. These come to eight tricks, and you need one additional trick for your contract.

If you want to speculate, you go after the diamonds. The speculation works out very badly. You lose any diamond finesse that you may try, and back comes a heart to dummy's king. Now it is too late for the spades to help. You make only your eight tricks. Down one.

SPADES SAFETY

You can surely develop your ninth trick by going after the spades. If you lose the first spade trick, the opponents can knock out dummy's king of hearts. You can then give up another spade, and your jack of hearts will still stop the enemy's long suit. Your third spade is good for the vital ninth trick.

Actually, you can combine this safe play with a slight try for an extra trick. The method is to lead the first spade from dummy and finesse with the ten in the hope that East has the queen.

RUN CLUBS

The safest way to do this is to run the four club tricks before doing anything else. Then, since you are in dummy at the time, you can lead a low sapde and finesse with the ten. You are sure to win nine tricks, and will win ten if East happens to hold the queen of spades. (East doesn't have it, but you cannot tell this at the time.)

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

French actress Sarah Bernhardt was born Oct. 23, 1845.

On this day in history:

In 1915, an estimated 2,5000 women marched in New York City demanding the right to vote throughout the United States.

In 1942, the British 8th Army launched an offensive at El Alamein, Egypt, starting a campaign that was to sweep the Axis forces out of North Africa.

In 1947, the state of Maine was declared a disaster area as forest fires caused damage estimated at $30 million.

In 1955, Ngo Dinh Diem was chosen to take over the South Vietnamese government in the country's first free election. He later was assassinated.

A thought for the day: American writer Carl Sandburg said, "Time is a sandpile we run our fingers through."

Intelligence, Ancestry Link

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Dr. William Shockley, controversial Stanford University scientist, has suggested again that there may be a relationship between the intelligence of Negroes and their percentage of Caucasion ancestry.

In a paper prepared yesterday for the National Academy of Sciences, he said he found that two-thirds of the black children he studied came from families with an income of $7,000 a year.

The other third came from families with incomes of more than $13,000, he added.

Differentials in family income could be explained by his earlier research which he said showed that 22 per cent of American Negroes had an average of 51 per cent Caucasian ancestry while the other 78 per cent had 21 per cent Caucasian ancestry.

Mineral King Plan Said Dead

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Chances of Walt Disney Productions ever building its long planned winter and summer resort in Mineral King Valley are all but dead, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times said there are three factors against developing the valley:

The issue will be tied up in court for years.

New governmental approvals are needed to proceed and they may not be forthcoming at a time of increased environmental awareness.

The Disney firm hopes to select a site elsewhere within the next year for a major recreational resort although it will maintain a continuing interest in Mineral King.

Trio Hunted In Woman's Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Detectives hunted today for three young men—who had been seen in a white van with sliding doors—in the death of a woman whose head was nearly severed with a knife or machete.

Lt. Charles Ellis, homicide detail chief, said the trio had accosted three teen-agers prior to the killing of Mrs. Quita Hague, 28, and that both they and Mrs. Hague's husband had noted that one man in the van had a shaved head.

"There could be a relationship between these two incidents," he added.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Wax In Ear Canal Protective Only, Has No Other Function

Wax in the ear canal serves no function other than protection. Its presence is normal when the wax is secreted as a liquid that dries on the surface of the skin at the opening, pulverizes, and disappears. Dust is trapped in the sticky secretion and removed with it. When this mechanism fails, wax accumulates in the canal. Solid air pollutants are trapped in the sticky mass and the ensuing soft or hard plugs may ultimately block the channel.

SOME PERSONS are bothered with wax regularly throughout life. Others are troubled during certain periods. And, for reasons unknown, only one ear may be involved. Heredity may be causal or, perhaps, it is a constitutional condition that makes the skin at the opening of the ear unhealthy. Picking at the ears with the fingernail is one cause of infection. Personal hygiene has little to do with it except, perhaps, among persons who work in extremely dirty environments, such as coal mines.

The ear wax of whites and blacks usually is pale, honey-colored, moist, and sticky. In the yellow race, it is grey, dry, and brittle. (This difference between wet and dry wax has been used in genetic studies.) Most of the glands that manufacture wax are located in the skin of the outer one-third of the ear canal. Nearly all the sebaceous (oil producing) glands open into follicles and the oily secretion oozes along the hair to reach the surface.

THE SECOND set of glands (ceruminous) are modified sweat glands, somewhat similar to those in the armpit. Wax is a mixture of the secretions of these two sets of glands. Differences between dry and wet ear wax depend entirely upon the oily content and number of glands.

Wax plugs are not normal and may irritate the lining, interfere with hearing, or cause dizziness. It is unwise to clean the ears with cotton probes, sticks, or hairpins. A soft wax buildup can be washed out. Hard plugs can also be eliminated, but must be softened first with sweet oil or glycerine. Many ear specialists use a special spoon to remove the wax to prevent damage to the drum.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, CA 94902.

DIVERTICULA

I. T. writes: Does it hurt a person with diverticulosis to drink moderately?

REPLY

One drink has little or no effect, but several may aggravate or precipitate infection. Alcohol causes congestion of the lining of these small outpocketings and frequently produces spasm of the bowel wall. It is spasm and congestion that are harmful.

CAP AND BALDNESS

I. K. writes: I wear a cap all day long on the job. Will this protect me from baldness or cause baldness?

REPLY

Not if you refer to inherited male baldness. The only way to prevent this type of hair loss is to get another set of grandparents.

PELLAGRA AND NIACIN

A reader writes: Does a person with pellagra have to take niacin the rest of his life?

REPLY

No. Niacin is a specific remedy but once the condition is brought under control, a well balanced diet will prevent a recurrence.

AFTER THE 'CHANGE'

G.A. writes: When a woman goes through the change, does it leave her with something wrong like heart disease or poor eyesight?

REPLY

No. Her ovaries become smaller and less active. The subsequent loss of certain hormones alters the lining membranes of the reproductive passageways and menstruation ceases. The bones may become more porous (osteoporosis) leading to backache. Blame age not the change should heart trouble or poor eyesight develop. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on the menopause.

GOUT, BRIGHT'S

B. A. writes: Are gout and Bright's disease related?

REPLY

No. Gout, a metabolic desease, is a form of arthritis; Bright's disease is a kidney disorder. Uncontrolled gout can damage the kidneys.

RH DISEASE

S.F. writes: Would it be safe to have a child if the woman is positive and the man negative?

REPLY

Yes. I assume you refer to the Rh factor in the blood and not to personalities. Much can be done to prevent mishaps when the physician is aware that a Rh problem exists.

CALM DOWN

A.G. writes: When I start to eat, my stomach gets shaky and I can't finish the meal. Can anything be done for this?

REPLY

Yes — calm down. But there is no need for concern if you are not losing weight.

INFANTILE ORGAN

REPLY

Rocket Drill Sinks Well In Seconds

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

MOSCOW — Soviet engineer Mikhail Tsiferov has invented a rocket-operated drill that sinks a 50-foot well in 18 seconds, according to the newspaper Socialist Industry.

He is testing his pilot model in the arid steppes of Saratov Province. The region depends on subterranean water, but ordinary well drilling in the rocky soil is costly and time-consuming.

Tsiferov's drill relies on hot jets of gas flowing from rows of nozzles on the working head. It concentrates great power on a small area of rock, crushing the rock instantly.

Jet thrust pushes and revolves the underground missile. As it bites into the earth the rocket simultaneously ejects to the surface up to two tons of soil per second.

Although less than five feet long and carrying under 50 pounds of fuel, the model tested in the Saratov steppe is of 50,000 horsepower capacity. The Moscow newspaper did not indicate the nature of the fuel.

Engineer Tsiferov now is working on a deep-penetration rocket capable of working in dense soils for half an hour and then returning to the surface for refueling.

One model can move either vertically or horizontally underground. Designers are planning a self-propelled carrier for the transportation and launching of underground rockets. They have drawn up blueprints for telescoping casing pipes that would follow the rocket in loose soils and make it possible to build a complete well in 20 to 30 seconds.

A pneumatic tunneling machine based on Tsiferov's rocket drill is being operated at a construction project in Chelyabinsk, in the Ural Mountains. It uses compressed air instead of hot jets of gas.

Tape Furor Halts Trial Of Mitchell

NEW YORK (UPI) —The trial of former Nixon cabinet officers John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans was adjourned today until Jan. 7th because of legal problems relating to a White House tape recording.

The conspiracy and obstruction of justice trial, scheduled to begin today, was delayed by U.S. District Court Judge Lee Gagliardi at the request of federal prosecutors. They had asked for time after learning last Friday that President Nixon would not release a tape recording of a conversation he is said to have had with his former counsel, John W. Dean III.

Gagliardi, who will preside at the trial, indicated the possibility of barring Dean from testifying unless the White House tape is made available to the defense.

Gagliardi ruled lastweek that Nixon will have to release the tape or Dean could be barred from testifying. The conversation took place on April 15. Dean is said to have asked for immunity against prosecution in exchange for testimony in the Watergate investigation.

Mitchell, former attorney general and Nixon's campaign manager in 1972, and Stans, former commerce secretary, are accused of trying to influence a stock fraud investigation of New Jersey financier Robert L. Vesco. Vesco, who allegedly gave a $200,000 contribution to the Nixon campaign to thwart the investigation, also is charged but has been out of the country and escaped trial. A fourth defendant, Harry Sears, a prominent New Jersey Republican, is scheduled to be tried later.

Congress Undecided On Impeachment Proceedings

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congress is undecided about whether to begin impeachment proceedings against President Nixon although there is widespread disapproval of his firing of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, a UPI poll indicated today.

Republicans, who might normally be expected to rally to the President, showed greater indecision than Democrats, and some normally key GOP Nixon supporters said they would withhold judgment until after more facts are in.

Although more members of the House and Senate favored the start of impeachment proceedings than opposed it, about half of those contacted indicated they were undecided about what to do.

A substantial number of congressmen, including many of those who opposed impeachment proceedings, registered disagreement with Nixon's decision to discharge Cox. A number of Republicans said they felt Nixon's actions were wrong, but were insufficient to warrant impeachment.

All House and Senate members who could be contacted—more than half of both bodies—were asked: "Would you favor the beginning of impeachment proceedings against the President?"

In the House, which would have to initiate any impeachment proceedings, 65 favored the idea (59 Democrats and six Republicans), 50 were opposed (13 Democrats and 37 Republicans) and 107 were undecided (49 Democrats and 58 Republicans).

In the Senate, which would try any articles of impeachment brought by the House, 19 were in favor (17 Democrats and two Republicans), 11 were opposed (two Democrats and nine Republicans) and 35 were undecided (19 Democrats and 16 Republicans).

The two Republican senators favoring impeachment proceedings are Sens. Clifford Case of New Jersey and Edward Brooke of Massachusetts. The five GOP House members in favor are Reps. Paul McCloskey, Calif., Richard Mallary, Vt., Charles Whalen, Ohio, Lawrence Williams, Pa., and Joshua Eilberg, Pa.

For instance, Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., with the strongest record of support for Nixon programs in the House, said that although he did not favor impeachment proceedings now, Congress should form a committee of inquiry to determine whether impeachment is appropriate.

Rep. William B. Widnall, RN.J., who normally can be expected to support Nixon consistently, said he would seriously consider advocating impeachment proceedings if warranted by an investigation of the weekend's events.

A good portion of the undecided said they would prefer to wait for U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to determine whether Nixon will be charged with contempt.

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn.: "It's hard as hell to resist the inclination that he (Nixon) is guilty as hell."

Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn.: The President has made a "mockery of the Constitution and our system of government and law."

Rep. James M. Hanley, D-N.Y.: "The President owes the people a prompt and full explanation of his actions and, if he doesn't do this in a satisfactory manner, the Congress will have no choice but to move in the direction of impeachment."

Rep. Thad Cochran, R-Miss.: "It strikes me that the same people that are crying for Nixon's resignation and urging impeachment are the same ones that wanted (Sen. George S.) McGovern to be President."

Rep. Dan Kuykensall, R-Tenn.: "It sounds like a lynching party to me. I think Cox was interested in the President's neck, not the truth."

Rep. James Symington, D-Mo.: "I look forward to having the House consider the matter at the earliest possible time, and with dispatch."

Rep. Lawrence Williams, R-Pa.: "Studying the facts I presently have, I would be inclined to vote for impeachment. I see no other course that can be taken at the present. However, I don't want to hear any talk about impeachment until Gerald Ford is confirmed by the House and Senate as vice president."

Rep. Elford A. Cederberg, R-Mich.: "I can't see any grounds for impeachment proceedings. Everyone was satisfied with the compromise except Cox. God, Cox doesn't un the government."

Rep. William D. Ford, D-Mich.: "I wouldn't have been surprised if he (Nixon) had ordered out the army. Watching what's going on in Washington is like watching a weird movie about a banana republic."

Rep. Ray Roberts, D-Tex.: "I think we will now be compelled to listen to the ones who want to impeach him. His precipitous action has caused many people who were behind him to question whether he really had something to hide."

Irving Might Have Laughed

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Clifford Irving says that if he had gotten away with his hoax of writing an autobiography of Howard Hughes he would have laughed at the world, "but not maliciously."

Irving, serving a sentence in a federal correctional institution for the affair, told the Danbury News-Times in a written interview yesterday that he still finds the whole hoax "exhilarating from beginning to end."

He said if he had been able to pull it off "I would have laughed because I would have seen, for about the 1,000th time in my life, that the world and its creatures and its pretenses were absurd."

Life Outside Earth Possible

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — Robert Dixon, assistant director of the Perskins Observatory, said today there could be life elsewhere in the universe.

Dixon said scientists today can make amino acids and with an electrical charge create life in laboratories, and the same elements on Earth are found in many places in the universe.

Coffee Losing To Soft Drinks

HOUSTON (UPI) —The head of the third largest cola firm said yesterday soft drinks will surpass coffee this year as America's No. 1 beverage.

William C. Durkee, president of Royal Crown Cola, attributed the increase in consumption to broader availability of soft drinks and the preparation required for coffee.

Gilda Is Now A Tropical Depression

MIAMI (UPI) —Gilda, a one-time tropical storm which lost its power, drifted slowly eastward away from the Bahamas early today.

Jan Peerce Hurts Leg In A Fall

Julie Says Dad In A Good Mood

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) —Julie Nixon Eisenhower says "there is no despair in the White House" over the Watergate crisis, despite calls for impeachment from Congress.

"There is no desperation, there is no despair," she said yesterday describing the mood of the White House after the firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and the dismissal and resignation of the top two men in the Justice Department. And her father—President Nixon—is in a "very good mood."

SAW SOUNDS NOT THOSE OF SLEEPER

An employee of a San Anselmo jewelry store was sound asleep today when he was awakened by the sound of wood being sawed.

Paul M. Herskovits, an employee of Flash Jewelry at 638 San Anselmo Avenue, told officers he was sleeping in the firm office at 3:19 a.m. when he was startled by a hand saw cutting through the floor.

Police said they found a hand saw, a brace and bit, and a bag of tools under the building, which is suspended over San Anselmo Creek.

Court Lets News Case Rule Stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court refused by an 8-1 vote today to review the action of a federal judge who found two newsmen in contempt for publishing stories about testimony given at an open court proceeding.

In a brief order without comment, the Court let stand the contempt action of Nov. 8, 1971, by U. S. District Judge E. Gordon West against two Baton Rouge, La., reporters —Larry Dickinson and Gibbs Adams. Justice William O. Douglas wanted to hear the case.

The Court also:

Upheld a Kansas law used to bar Amtrak from serving liquor to passengers when its trains are passing through the state.

Agreed to review a lower court ruling which set aside the court-martial conviction of Capt. Howard B. Levy, a Brooklyn dermatologist who refused to train medics for Vietnan duty.

Agreed to rule this term on a Florida law which grants a $500 property tax exemption to widows but not to widowers. The law was challenged on grounds of sex discrimination by a man whose wife had died.

In the Louisiana contempt case, a federal appeals court held that Dickinson and Gibbs should have obeyed West's order even though they thought it unconstitutional and challenged it through regular court channels rather than defy it outright.

They were fined $300 each for defying his order that no accounts be published of testimony given at an injunction hearing in his court to prevent any prejudicial prepublicity at a possible subsequent criminal trial.

Attorneys for Dickinson and Gibbs told the Supreme Court that West's order violated the constitutional guarantee of free speech and amounted to an unconstitutional "prior restraint" on the press.

'Impeach Nixon' Stickers Sold

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Two self-proclaimed former Nixon voters were selling "Impeach Nixon" bumper stickers across the street from the White House yesterday, while others collected names on a petition to impeach the President.

On the White House side of the street, a lone picket walked along, holding a sign reading: "Honk if you want him impeached." Some motorists did.

Several blocks away four persons stood silently in front of the former offices of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox in what they said was a 24-hour vigil. They carried signs reading, "Don't Let the Fox Guard the Chicken Coop" and "Nixon: Leave Justice Alone."

School Fire

CULVER CITY (UPI) —Fire caused an estimated $100,000 damage to a school system warehouse here yesterday, destroying school supplies, books and playground equipment stored in the one-story structure.

Depressing Day For Ron Cerrudo

Sitting there sipping a beer, Ron Cerrudo reflected on his past few months of pro golf. He was angry with himself, but tried to hide the bitterness as best he could. He had just shot a second consecutive 73 on the Silverado Country Club course in Napa, his home course, and was waiting for the official word that he had missed the cut.

He indeed missed the cut of 144. The golfers who were to continue for the third and fourth rounds of the Kaiser International had to shoot even par or better. Eventual winner Ed Sneed of Columbus, Ohio, and John Schlee, who lost to Sneed on the first hole of a playoff, shot 13 under par for the four days.

THE SECOND 73 was especially hard for Cerrudo to take because he was two-under going into the final holes on Friday. But bogeys on the 14th, 15th and 17th holes put him out of the tournament.

Ron hasn't had a good year on the Professional Golfers Association tour in 1973 and has earned only $13,000, not enough to keep one going in this expensive proposition, but he is not going hungry because of the approximate $35,000 he has earned playing in tournaments out of the country. Ron estimates it costs $25,000 annually in expenses on the PGA tour.

But the 28-year-old Cerrudo is not about to throw in the towel. "If I had two more years of playing like this I think I would get out," he said. "But I know I can play better golf than this. I just need to put four good rounds together and get back my confidence."

SINCE CERRUDO didn't end in the top 60 winning list last year, he is not on the exempt list and has to qualify for tournaments this year. Many of the PGA events are invitationals, however, and Ron has been asked in. Once you make the cut in a tournament, you are automatically qualified in the next one, and although a fifth place was his best 1973 tournament so far, he usually makes the cut.

"If you want to know the cut for a tournament, just look for my score. I'm either right on it or maybe one stroke better," he said dejectedly. You don't get rich just barely making the cut.

Ron has been on the PGA tour since late in 1967, after his graduation from San Jose State University. After winning numerous amateur titles, Ron went into professional golf with big things expected of him. He has won two PGA tour events over the years, but has not been able to play with consistency.

BUT THIS has been an especially bad year for him. "Before this year I had never missed the cut in the California Tournaments — Los Angeles Open, the Crosby and here at Silverado. But this year I missed the cut at all three. I just don't know what's wrong.

Ron said he is in a good frame of mind and his divorce of four months ago is not affecting his game. He wants to put the failure of Silverado behind him and hopes to put things back in order this week at the Sahara Invitational starting Thursday in Las Vegas.

You can't think about the last tournament, or the last round, or the last hole, said Cerrudo, whose parents Mr. and Mrs. John Cerrudo live in San Rafael.

Ron is managed by Mark McCormack, the same man who handles the business affairs of millionaire Arnold Palmer. McCormack now is agent for about 40 golfers, taking care of arrangements for tournaments and exhibitions out of the country.

The out of country tourneys make it possible for Cerrudo to make a good living as a professional golfer, but he wants more than that.

"I want to do well in the tournaments in this country," he said. "I want to prove to myself that I can win." He is a good competitor and might prove his point yet.

Retirement Pondered By Bears' Butkus

CHICAGO (UPI) —Chicago Bears linebacker Dick Butkus is considering retiring from professional football because, he says, "I can't perform like I used to."

Butkus yesterday Monday that he's not the same player who vowed to Bears owner George Halas Sr. last July that if he could sign a no-cut, no-trade contract he would lead the Bears to a championship.

"How do I know if I can make it to next week?" said Butkus, in reference to his buckling, battle-torn knees.

The 30-year-old Bears star said he will decide whether to play again next year "before the season ends."

"I've got to make some decisions somewhere," he said. "I've got to ask myself if it's worth what he's paying."

Before the Bears lost their fifth game in six starts last weekend, Halas issued a statement saying Butkus was a "true competitor whose problems seem to vary in direct proportion to the showing of the team as a whole."

Halas said he met all of Butkus' contract demands last July 13 because Butkus told him, "'Give me what I am asking and I'll make this into a championship team, all by myself — and I can do it."

Butkus said Halas could take his statement "and shove it."

"Things have changed," he said. "I can't perform like I used to.

"I don't want to sound like a blowhard but I felt (last July) I could do that. I had no doubt I could do it. But you see what I do in practice now. I go into a game cold. I read the game plan. I can't be a leader.

"The players see me just standing there at practice and it could have an impact on the team. I've got to ask myself if it's all worth it.

Power Failure At Bay Meadows

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said equipment failure at the track also caused a widespread blackout in the central part of San Mateo.

Ralston's Views On Raider Tie

"It's better to be the tier than the tiee," the second-year coach said after last night's game. "Nobody likes a tie, but you have to take it at this time of the year. It put us in good position."

It put Oakland in a tie with Kansas City for first place in the American Football Conference West at 3-2-1 and Denver a game back at 2-3-1.

Plackicker Jim Turner, who played quarterback for Ralston at Utah State 11 years ago, got the tie for the Broncos when he kicked a 35-yarder with three seconds to play.

"I told him, 'heck we used to kick ones like this at Utah State blindfolded," the cheerful Ralson said.

"I didn't feel any different about it than any of the others," said Turner, who also had kicks of 43 and 37 yards in the second half and had a 52-yarder hit the crossbar and a 47-yarder blocked in the first half.

Rain Dampens A's Crowd Spirits

70,000 Attend Parade

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Intermittent rains dampened spirits a bit as about 70,000 turned out to welcome the World Champion Oakland A's when they paraded through downtown Oakland.

Last year, a quarter-million fans greeted the 1972 World Champions.

"I saw the parade last year," said Stan Cox, a public accountant from nearby Emeryville. "There's very little enthusiasm this year. The players look sullen and bored. Oakland will never be a baseball town and the players know it.

"It wouldn't be like this in New York."

Owner Charlie Finley told the fans that he had three things to say: "The team is not leaving Oakland; the team is not for sale; the greatest friend I've ever had and one of the greatest managers in baseball is Dick Williams." Williams resigned after leading his team to the seven-game World Series win over the New York Mets.

"I hate to leave," he told the crowd. "I don't see my family enough. God bless all you wonderful people, and Oakland will win other division titles."

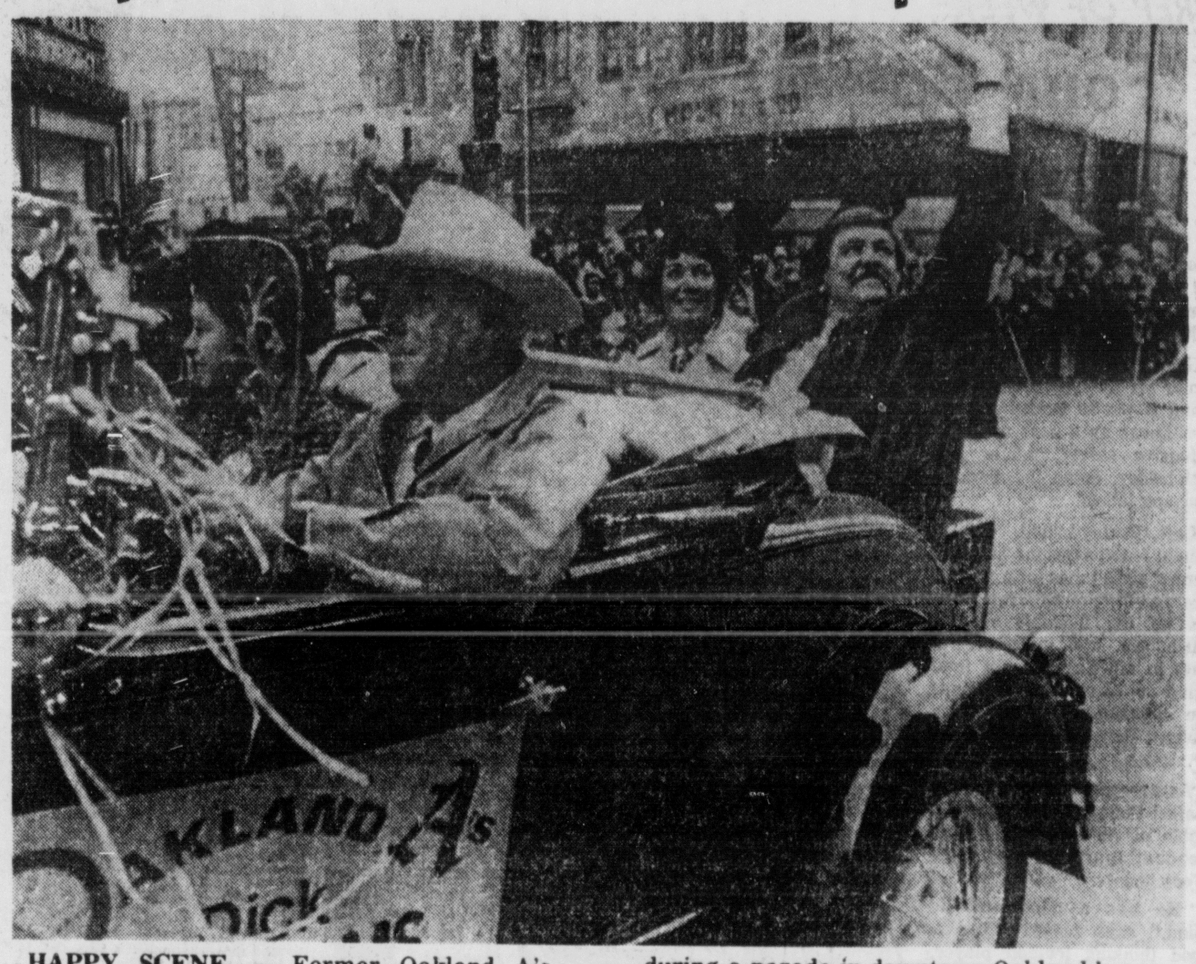

Sporadic cheers greeted the players, dressed in civilian clothes, and their wives as they made their way through the downtown area in a fleet of antique cars accompanied by marching bands and clowns. Rain fell off and on throughout the late morning parade.

"Who's Amazing Now? Our A's" read a giant banner in the team's colors of green and yellow that stretched across the entrance to City Hall. The Mets had been dubbed "amazing" by their fans.

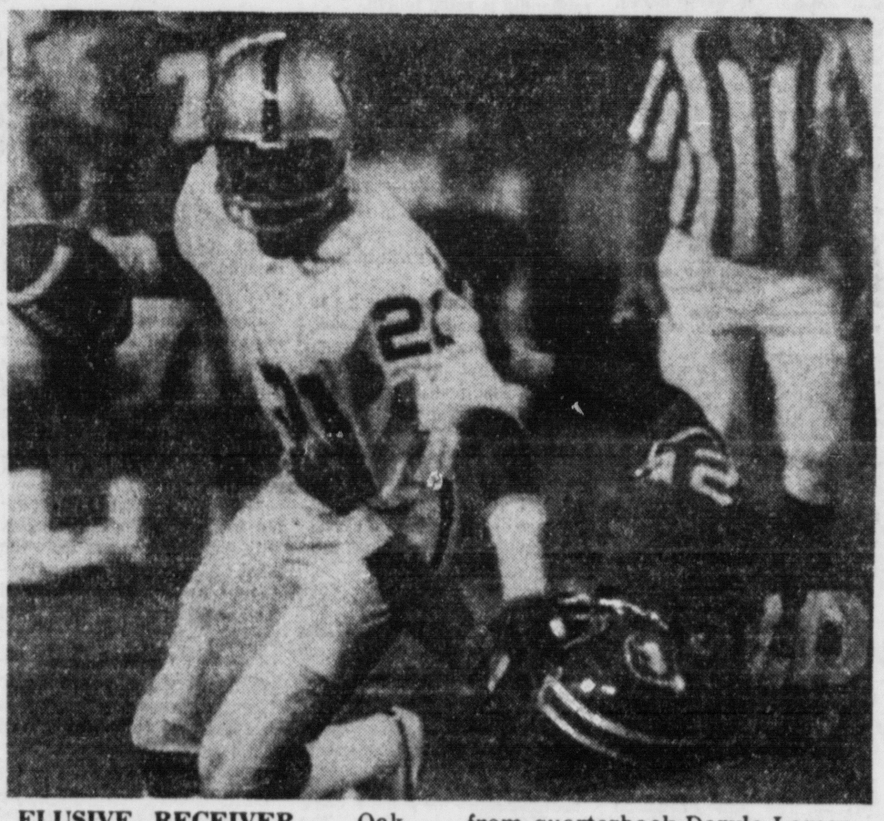

Infielder Mike Andrews, whom Finley apparently tried to fire during the series and whom Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered reinstated, drew a loud ovation when he appeared on the bandstand. Andrews smiled and waved briefly at Finley whom he passed without inches. Finley's reaction could not be observed.

Several players did not attend the parade, including Angel Mangual, Jesus Alou, Manny Trillo and pitchers Vida Blue, Jim "Catfish" Hunter and Paul Lindblad.

HAPPY SCENE — Former Oakland A's manager Dick Williams and his wife Norma yesterday acknowledged crowd applause during a parade in downtown Oakland honoring the 1972 and 1973 baseball World Champions. Others in the car were not identified.

ELUSIVE RECEIVER — Oakland Raiders' wide receiver Cliff Branch last night eluded the grasp of Denver Broncos' defensive back Calvin Jones after catching a fourth quarter pass from quarterback Daryle Lamonica. This catch in the final minute at Denver set up George Blanda's 49-yard field goal, but the Broncos came back to tie Oakland, 23-23.

FOR WARRIORS

Depth At Center Is A Problem

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors were supposed to be deep in the pivot department this season but Nate Thurmond still had to go for 45 minutes last Saturday against Kansas City-Omaha.

Sub forward Derrick Dickey has been recovering from the flu and sub center George Jomnson still has his knee in a cast. If Dickey can come back when Phoenix comes to call tonight at 8 o'clock, he can sub occasionally for Clyde Lee and Lee can shift into the pivot to give Thurmond a rest.

The Warriors are 2-2 in a confused Pacific division that finds Portland ahead with a 3-0 mark. Los Angeles is second at 3-2 but has lost twice to Atlanta by decisive scores. Phoenix somehow fell 166-112 to Seattle last Sunday to windup 2-3 while the Sonics are 3-4.

The Warriors ran well in dumping the Kings 100-81, the third time in four games the opponent has been held below 100 points. Cazzie Russell hit 12-of-22 shots and Jeff Mullins 8-of-20.

The Warriors are 2-2 in a confused Pacific Division that finds Portland ahead with a 3-0 mark. Los Angeles is second at 3-2 but has lost twice to Atlanta by decisive scores. Phoenix somehow fell 116-112 to Seattle last Sunday to windup 2-3 while the Sonics are 3-4.

A Busy Agenda At A.L. Meeting

CHICAGO (UPI) — Recommendations to "modernize" the American League, as well as a list of candidates for president, will be presented to club owners today and perhaps they will take immediate action on some phases of the report.

It was regarded as virtually certain the owners would select a new president to replace Joe Cronin — whose contract has two years to run — immediately or to serve as understudy to Cronin for an unspecified period before taking office.

It was reported that Cronin, a baseball Hall of Fame member who was both player and manager at Washington and Boston, would step up immediately to become chairman of the board of directors and that Lee MacPhail, now general manager of the New York Yankees, would be named president.

That was the format followed in 1959 when Cronin left the Boston Red Sox to become president, replacing the late Will Harridge, who then became chairman of the board until his death.

A committee charged with recommending changes in the league constitution and suggesting possible presidential candidates called today's meeting simply to make its report. The report was presented earlier in preliminary form and the committee was instructed to expand on some points which it covered.

Committee members have interviewed "several" candidates for the office of president, but it was understood MacPhail almost was an automatic choice because of his long connection with baseball and the respect held generally for his baseball knowledge.

Other proposals which might be voted on would make the league president "more than a figurehead," granting him more power to act independently without consultation with the executive committee or the board of directors.

However, there was some reluctance among the owners to approve that phase of "modernization" until a decision has been made on the new president.

"We want to modernize so we can do the things that must be done when they should be done," one owner said. "This is a broad concept of improvement in overall league operations, and it will be up to the owners to decide whether to take action at once, wait for the winter meeting or what they want to do."

There might be some discussion of the designated hitter rule, under which a player could be named to hit for the pitcher throughout each game, but it was unlikely there would be a chance since the league when it adopted the rule agreed to test it for a three year period.

IN 10-PLAYER DEAL

Wright, Rodriguez Keys

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The California Angels, looking for a hitting catcher yesterday, traded Clyde Wright, the winningest pitcher in the club's history, to Milwaukee in a 10-player deal that brought Brewer receiver Ellie Rodriguez to the Angels.

"We felt that we needed a catcher very badly and they felt they needed a left-handed starter," Angel manager Bobby Winkles said. "We traded some experience for a little youth."

The multi-player trade, announced by Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton, also involved Brewers outfielders Ollie Brown and Joe Lahoud and pitchers Skip Lockwood and Gary Ryerson, and Angels' pitcher Steve Barber, outfielder Ken Berry, reserve catcher Art Kusnyer and another Angel to be named later.

Wright had won 87 games in his seven-plus years with the Angels but his record this year was 11-19.

"This is not the happiest day of my life," the 30-year-old Wright said. "But there comes a time when it has to be done. I've been fortunate to be with the Angels for the last seven years. This is the prettiest place in the American League to play ball."

Rodriguez, 27, hit .269 in 290 at bats and drove in 30 runs for the Brewers in 1973. He had a .285 average in 1972.

The Angels hope Rodriquez can solve their hitting void as catcher. Their receiver most of last season was Jeff Torborg, 31, who hit .220.

"Everyone on our club involved in the trade was over 30 and everyone we got from Milwaukee was under 30," said Winkles. "So we traded some experience for a little youth."

Angel reliever Barber, 34, who was a 20-game winner with Baltimore in 1913 and 3-2 with California this season, said he was surprised by the trade but was looking forward to playing with Milwaukee, his seventh major league team.

"Initially I was unhappy about it but the more I think about it, I feel Milwaukee has real good potential," Barber said. "They're going to score a lot of runs and all they need is more consistent pitching."

Winkles talked about some of the Angels' acquisitions:

—"Lockwood (5-12 last season) we think can be a good reliever and we have to flirt with the idea that he will be a starter, but we'll have to leave that up to Tom Morgan, our pitching coach.

—"Ollie Brown (who batted .280 and hit seven home runs last season) gives us more power in the outfield than what we had.

—"Lahoud (who batted .204, hit five homers and had 26 RBIs) is a guy that nobody's very high on but I personally like him. I say I like him because he goes about baseball seriously and as far as I'm concerned, that's a start.

—"Ryerson is a guy of 26 who we thought we'd like to take a chance on." (The Angels assigned him to the Salt Lake City club but Dalton said he would join the team's major league spring training camp).

Other Angels traded included Berry, 32, who hit three home runs and drove in 36 runs while batting .284 in 1973, and Kusnyer, 27, who played only briefly last season, batting .125.

NEW PACT FOR METS' MANAGER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yogi Berra signed a three-year contract today to continue as manager of the National League champion New York Mets.

In making the announcement, Mets' general manager Bob Scheffing disclosed that "There was never any doubt about Yogi's returning. It was just a formality in getting a board meeting together and sit down and negotiate."

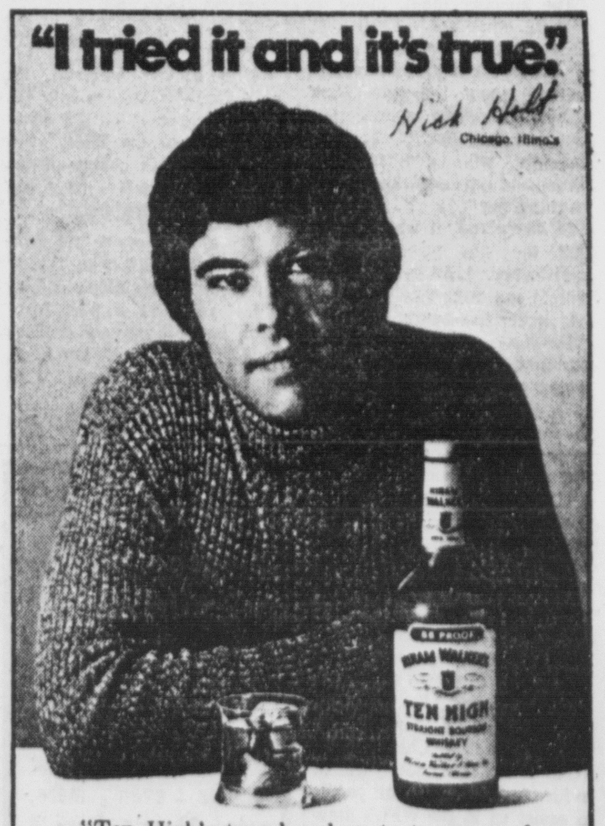

Scheffing said that Berra was given a "substantial raise" — probably into the $70-$75,000 bracket.

Lakers In Houston

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Los Angeles Lakers open a two-game road trip tonight with a meeting with the Houston Rockets, co-leaders of the National Basketball Association's central division with a 3- 3 record.

"I tried it and it's true."

'Four' Bob Gelardis Help Terra Linda's Grid Team

BY LEW CODDINGTON

Bob Gelardi may be small, but there are four of him, so Terra Linda High School is quite happy with the situation.

Gelardi, a 5-foot-9, 165-pound senior for the Trojans' football team, is put to work by coach Don Lucas as a pass receiver, defensive safety, punter and kick-holder, doing the work of four specialists.

Last Friday night, Gelardi caught four passes for 70 yards, punted eight times for a 32-yard average, recovered a fumble to set up the ultimate winning touchdown, and intercepted a pass to kill San Rafael's final drive as Terra Linda retained the city Board of Education's coveted Bell with a 21-16 victory.

As a result, he earned the San Rafael Police Dept.'s most valuable player trophy and Independent-Journal Prep of the Week honors.

"He has a good athletic mind," says Lucas. "He's a good thinking football player, and he has a fair concept of what the game's all about. He's steady, and he always seems to be in the middle of a lot of action."

This has been true ever since Terra Linda's seventh game last season, when Gelardi moved into a starting safety position. He did not start on offense until this season, and in fact was a quarterback last year.

"My dad (William) was a quarterback (Lowell High in San Francisco and the University of California in Berkeley), and he used to throw to me and have me run patterns," he said.

"He wanted me to be a quarterback, but I like to catch the ball."

Gelardi is one of the few wide receivers in the league who also plays defensive back, and he considers it an advantage both ways. "You know what tricks the other guy might be up to," he says.

Gelardi did not begin to play organized tackle football until his freshman year, though "I've always been into football, watching it on T.V., and I always played on the street or the sandlot as a kid."

He played one year of freshman ball, one year of junior varsity ball and is now in his second varsity season.

Gelardi holds a C average at Terra Linda and his college plans are uncertain. "I might work a year, save some bucks and then go to school," he says. "I might go to Humboldt State and get into forestry, but that's just a thought." He figures he will be too small for college football.

He is certainly not too small to be a star in high school, however, especially since he can be useful to his team in such a wide variety of ways.

BOB GELARDI

Playing both wide receiver and defensive back means "you know what tricks the other guy might be up to."

Cubs Reportedly Trading Hurler Jenkins To Texas

Combined AP & UPI

ARLINGTON, Tex. — The Texas Rangers have reportedly acquired pitcher Ferguon Jenkins from the Chicago Cubs in a trade that will be announced Friday and are working on a deal to acquire catcher Dave Duncan from the Cleveland Indians.

The trade for Jenkins was apparently consummated during the World Series but can't be announced until Friday when interleague trading officially opens.

The Rangers gave up two unnamed players for Jenkins, a 20-game winner for six straight years, and it is also believed outfielder Rico Carty (now of the Oakland A's) and pitcher Mike Paul, who went to the Cubs from the Rangers last season for future considerations, were part of the Jenkins deal.

Officials in Chicago said the Cubs were asking for third baseman Bill Madlock, a 22-year-old rookie, and second baseman Dave Nelson in return for Jenkins.

The Rangers are also interested in acquiring Duncan but officials in Oakland said Sunday during the final World Series games, where all the trading was going on, that the deal fell through because the Rangers refused to give Cleveland Nelson in return for Duncan.

But Ranger general manager Danny O'Brien said the team is still negotiating for Duncan.

The Yankee owner said he has made several recommendations to the New York brain trust, but that he's just one voice in the overall selection of a successor to Houk, who announced his resignation on the final day of the season with two years running on a contract and then signed as manager of the Detroit Tigers several days later.

"To my knowledge, however, nobody has approached Williams for the job," Steinbrenner said. "Williams had a two-year contract with Oakland and even though he announced his resignation as A's manager, we still must be sure we wouldn't be tampering with his services. If he's available, we'd like to have him."

Football

BUFFALO, N.Y. — O. J. Simpson, the leading rusher in the National Football League who suffered a sprained right ankle in the Buffalo Bills' 27-6 loss to the Miami Dolphins Sunday, will be ready to play in the Bills next game Oct. 29 against the Kansas City Chiefs.

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Browns announced today middle linebacker Dale Lindsey, an eight-year veteran, will be asked to rejoin the team as a replacement for Billy Andrews, who suffered a back injury and will be lost for the season.

Horse Racing

TORONTO — His private bodyguard at the ready, triple crown winner Secretariat took up residence on Canadian soil yesterday in advance of his all-but-certain start Sunday in the $125,000-Added Canadian International at Woodbine.

The big, handsome 3-year-old champion checked into Woodbine's white-and-green stall No. 103, barn 8 at about 4:45 p.m. for his 21st, and likely, last race. Secretariat was flown from New York where he had been quartered at Belmont Park since his last start — a victory in the Man O'War stakes.

Hockey

DETROIT — The Detroit Red Wings can start shopping around for a permanent replacement for netminder Roy Edwards — the veteran puck stopper says it's about time to get out of the game.

Edwards, who enjoyed his best of six National Hockey League seasons last year when he posted a 2.63 goals-against average with six shutouts, was given a leave of absence yesterday by the Detroit hockey hierarchy to ponder possible retirement.

1984 World Series Pits Peking Reds Vs. Yanks?

Preposterous? Not at all, says Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn says he expects more major league expansion in the next few years, and he'd like to see Japanese teams in the American majors right now.

"It would certainly be possible to have a Pacific League, with American teams from the West Coast and Honolulu, Japanese teams like Tokyo and Osaka and perhaps Taiwan and Manila.

"And, can Peking be far behind?" asked the commissioner in an interview yesterday. His remark was half in jest and half serious.

With improved relations between the West and Mainland China and with air travel speeds increasing all the time, there is no reason why athletic teams from the Orient could not compete regularly with Western Hemisphere teams.

Kuhn said baseball is on the verge of expansion — perhaps not immediately, but not before too long. He mentioned such cities as Toronto, Seattle, New Orleans and Mexico City as prime candidates.

"We'd like to be playing in Mexico City and Toronto right now," Kuhn said. "There is no reason why not."

Travel is virtually no problem. The flying time from Seattle to Tokyo is less than six hours. West Coast major league teams already are flying more than five hours to get to the East Coast.

Japanese baseball is very well developed and well supported. A number of American ex-major leaguers are playing for Japanese teams.

As far as is known, the sport has not been introduced in Mainland China, but Taiwan has an extensive program, and the Taiwan entry in the Little League World Series has won two straight World Titles.

Kuhn sees the possibility of three major leagues, the Pacific League plus two others. He also says realignment of the leagues could lead to divisional playoffs involving seven games instead of five.

A number of U.S. cities, including New Orleans and Seattle, are building domed stadia. Kuhn would not speculate on when such cities would get major league teams, but said those two certainly are in the expansion picture.

CHICAGO BUSINESSMEN BUYERS

Cleveland's Mileti To Sell World Football League Team

CHICAGO (UPI) —Attorney Gary Davidson, commissioner and president of the newly formed World Football League, announced today that a WFL Chicago franchise has been granted to an organization principally owned by Thomas J. Origer, a Chicago builder.

The announcement, made at a news conference, confirmed what United Press International in Cleveland previously had learned about the sale. Nick Mileti, Cleveland sports promoter and another of the WFL founders, will be a minority owner and partner in the Chicago franchise.

In Cleveland, it was learned that the sale price was an estimated $750,000. Mileti bought the franchise for $250,000 earlier this month.

Davidson said in a prepared announcement that the new league will begin play in July, 1974, "probably playing on Wednesday or Thursday nights with 20-game schedules carrying into December.

Mileti, who joined in the announcement, said his experience with major league baseball—he is a principal owner of the Cleveland Indians — and with other sports, and his respect for Origer, Davidson and others, "emphasizes to me that this league is viable and that it will be successful."

Origer said he is negotiating for 1974 dates in Chicago now. "One of our first moves will be to hire top-notch football people to assist us in the WFL's inaugural draft," Origer said. "We plan to have an announcement within the next few weeks."

"There were three Chicago groups interested in buying the franchise and Mr. Mileti has been working for the past three weeks with the Origer group to complete the sale," said a Mileti aide. "He flew to Chicago this morning to announce the sale and to take care of some other business involving the Cleveland Indians."

When Mileti bought the WFL franchise, it was speculated that the club would be headquartered in the Tampa-St. Petersburg-Orlando, Fla., area. The spokesman said that Mileti, who owns the Indians, Cavaliers of the NBA and Crusaders of the WHA, never planned to locate the WFL team here "because then we'd have to go head-to-head with the Browns."

"When Nick got involved with the WFL he wanted to help get it off the ground, as did other partners from the WHA," the spokesman said. "But at no time did he plan to have the team play in Cleveland.

"The stories about him owning the team and having it play in Florida were ridiculous," he said. "Yo can't own a franchise, have it play in another city and try to run it from here. We found out how tough that was."

The WFL, a pro football league which plans to include teams from Latin America, Canada, Europe and Asia, is being formed to begin play next year. Possible locations for the first teams in the league's inaugural season, besides Chicago, include New York, Los Angeles, Toronto, Boston, Mexico City, Milwaukee, Detroit and Honolulu.

Besides Mileti, other backers of the new league so far, Davidson said, have been Robert Schmerz, owner of the NBA Boston Celtics and the WHA's New England Whalers; John Bassett Jr., owner of the WHA Toronto Toros and the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League; and Ben Hatskin, owner of the WHA Winnipeg Jets.

49er Hurting For Receivers Versus Falcons

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers might have both starting wide receivers ready for Atlanta Sunday but one or none is more likely.

Gene Washington was on crutches yesterday after spraining his ankle/in the 40-0 romp over New Orleans. But Coach Dick Nolan said X-rays showed that the injury was only a sprain and that Washington could be ready.

Meanwhile, flanker Dan Abramowicz, who had a big day against his former Saints teammates, suffered minor sprains of his right knee and ankle and also might miss the Falcons visit to Candlestick Park.

If neither Washington nor Abramowicz is ready, Nolan said, "We'd use John Isenbarger at split end and switch (backup tight end) Dick Witcher to flanker. But I think Danny will be ready."

A Fruitless Hunt, Then Welcome Rest

RAVENDALE, Lassen County — When our son Andy, Norm Quadros and Ken Walker left the other morning, Mary and I almost packed up too. The camp was quiet and lonely. Then, five sage grouse came. We had company!

About that time, Enos Foster and Ropie Clark, both Marinites, and Larry Bursal from San Francisco showed up. New blood always peps things up with eager anticipation which is really 90 per cent of the hunt. Larry immediately got himself a beautiful four pointer! Then came the bad news. Enos called home and got the word that Larry's home had been burglarized. Poor Larry's happy day was ruined, and Ropie had to immediately take Larry home.

Enos, who stayed, and Mary and I planned a hunt the following day. We hunted a mountain over near the Nevada line. We didn't see a deer. It was a dry and desolate area. We found a small pothole formed by a small spring, and two mallards popped out. Then we jumped two bobcats and one coyote. After about a five-hour hunt, we again passed by the spring for a much needed drink of water. As Enos was bent over getting his drink, I asked him who his friend was? A little porcupine was crouched not five feet behind a rock intently watching him. After that, we again headed for the car, when all of a sudden we saw probably 30 chukars running just ahead of us. They were the first we had seen. It's a wonder the season wasn't open, as all we had were deer rifles. Chukar season opens Saturday.

We continued along finally hitting an old road which led to the car. Again Enos had a roadside visitor. This time, he almost stepped on a small rattlesnake! This we dispatched. If Quadros would have been here, I'm sure he would have taken the next Greyhound bus home. This was just the third rattler I've seen in 25 years of hunting here. And actually, I believe I've seen about five in Marin county through the years.

The following day we decided on another hunt. We started out by pointing out a mountain peak as a meeting place figuring it would take an hour and a half to get there. It took us three and a half hours — uphill all the way — but then the hunt really started. As I crossed a ridge, I saw 16 deer in three bunches. Seven went close enough to Enos. He didn't shoot, so I guessed they were all does.

Nine of them were directly across from me. I watched them for about a half hour trying to put horns on at least one, but they stayed in the shade of a juniper tree. Two magpies were giving them trouble, and one old doe would give each of the birds a chase now and then. I took my eyes off the deer at one point trying to locate Enos to motion him to move around above the deer, when, suddenly, they were gone. I suppose they picked up my scent.

I located them again about 600 yards down the canyon, so decided to try to get closer which I eventually did. They were all does. I watched them walk through some rim rock between Mary and Enos and knew that neither Enos or Mary saw them.

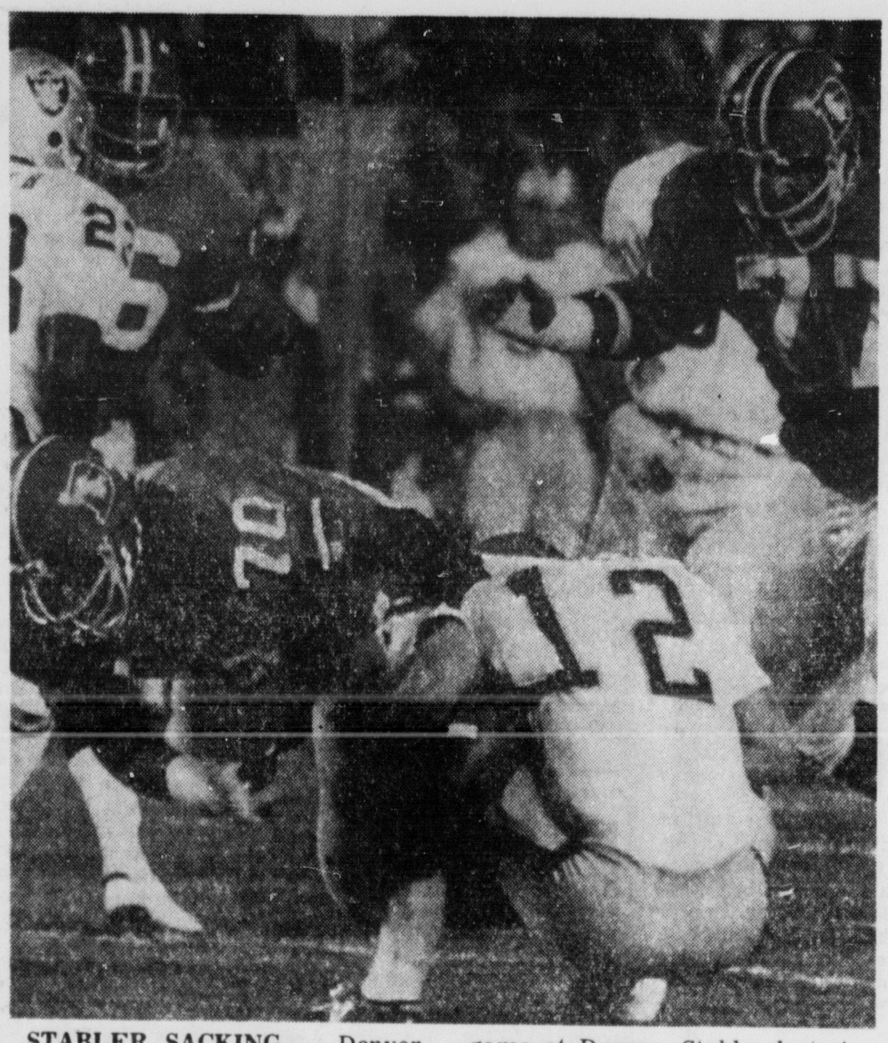

It was about then that Mary jumped another bunch of deer — probably 12 — two of which were bucks. I tried two shots. When they didn't even run, I knew it was just too far. I watched them walk about a mile to a cluster of trees, so I decided to make a sneak on them. Enos and Mary were traveling in the same direction; I thought we had a chance. Eventually I was able to tell the other two hunters, by hand signals, where the two bucks were approximately bedded down.

We covered the area with great caution, but nary a sign. We decided to head for the car; it was almost 6 p.m. Wouldn't you know it! Mary suddenly sees the bucks and we each fire three shots. But I guess we were both so hyped up that we couldn't hit our hat. And so it goes!

After hiking to the car and getting back to camp, we must have walked about six miles. Dehydrated! I drank three seven-ups, two cups of coffee and at least 10 glasses of water; then at midnight, I got up and had a can of apple juice. Rain is predicted for this area, and we surely need it.

Today, we are resting, taking baths and washing clothes, but not Enos. He is out looking for one of those two bucks, though he can hardly walk. I guess that's what it takes, but maybe I'm just getting old. But maybe, just maybe tomorrow!

THE DEPARTMENT OF Fish and Game this week will stock Stafford Reservoir (west of Novato) with catchable-size trout.

STABLER SACKING — Denver defensive linemen Paul Smith (70), and Lyle Alzado (77) converged on falling Oakland Raiders' quarterback Ken Stabler in the second quarter last night of the National Football League game at Denver. Stabler lost six yards on this play while attempting to pass. He was sacked six times for some 50 yards by Denver. The Broncos tied the Raiders, 23-23.

A's Campy Had Support For World Series Award

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — I agree. Reggie Jackson WAS the most exciting, the most dangerous performer in the entire World Series by far, but if you ask me who was the most valuable, who was the one guy who killed the Mets, I'd have to say it was skinny little Campy Campaneris.

Some other people seem to share that view, so it looks as if we have a brand new controversy.

What formed the foundation for this one was the announcement immediately following Sunday's World Series finale in Oakland designating Reggie Jackson as the MVP winner of the new car annually awarded by Sport Magazine to the outstanding performer in the series.

"I spoke to more than a dozen newspapermen sitting near me and they named Jackson overwhelmingly," says Dick Schaap, editor of the magazine. "The only one who argued for Campaneris was Tony Kubek, and I think he's prejudiced because he was a shortstop."

Tom Seaver is a pitcher, and he isn't prejudiced. If he was inclined to show any partiality at all, it would be in favor of Reggie Jackson because the Oakland slugger had some very nice things to say about him both during and after the series. But Tom Seaver says he casts his vote for Campaneris.

"He did it for seven games," says Seaver. "Reggie did a great job for them, and when they needed it, but he came on strongest at the end."

Bud Harrelson also goes for Campaneris over Jackson.

"I'm not trying to knock Reggie or demean the tremendous contribution he made for them, but I'd have to put Campaneris first. I think the magazine chose more on personality than anything else. I was on TV with Campy; he's from Cuba and doesn't speak the best English in the world. Reggie is something else completely. Besides being a terrific ballplayer, he has a marvelous personality. Look, I love the guy, but if you ask me my opinion, who I think was the MVP, I say Campaneris."

Schaap denies personality entered into the selection at all. He says Campy's English didn't matter.

"I heard Campaneris was from Cuba, and if he had won, we were all set to invite Castro from Havana when the car is awarded here Thursday," says the editor.

Actually, the ideal solution would be to award both Jackson and Campaneris cars.

"Can't do that," laughs Schaap. "I remember we ran into a similar situation last spring after the Knicks beat the Lakers for the NBA title. We didn't know whom to give the car to. Someone said we should've given out 12 motorcycles. Willis Reed finally was awarded the car."

The debate over whether Jackson or Campaneris actually was the MVP undoubtedly will go on, but to me the most under-rated player on both sides was Joe Rudi, the A's magnificent leftfielder.

He simply does an excellent job day in and day out, never tries to add any embroidery and is a pure delight to watch. What's more, he's a gentleman along with everything else.

Joe Rudi hit a nice solid .333 for the series and played leftfield the way he generally does — perfectly.

When it was all over, he walked over to the Mets' quarters to pay his respects.

Joe Rudi went in.

He chatted with several of the Mets' players, saying to them, "It could've gone either way."

He spoke with Felix Millan and with Tom Seaver.

"You wanna come play for us, Joe?" said Seaver. "You can hit."

Joe Rudi smiled and said nothing.

The way he plays he doesn't really have to say much.

Oakland's other scores came on an 80-yard pass from Ken Stabler to Mike Siani on which Denver defender Randy Momtgomery fell at the 50, and on a 16-yard pass from Stabler to Cliff Branch, also covered by Montgomery.

Stabler, who was sacked trying to pass six times and had two passes dropped, wound up hitting 16-of-24 for 313 yards.

Denver's other scores came on an 80-yard fumble recovery return by safety Bill Thompson on Oakland's first drive, and a one-yard run by Floyd Little.

The main aid to Denver's winning field goal was rookie Ray Guy's kickoff problems after Blanda's final field goal. Guy kicked the ball out of bounds on successive tries and finally wound up kicking from his own 30. Denver got the ball on its 38. Charley Johnson hit Little with a 13-yard pass, Joe Dawkins ran 12 and Little nine to set up Turner's tying shot.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Fund Exchanges, Capital Gains

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I plan to retire in December, 1974. We hold 550 shares of Dreyfus Fund, 900 National Investors Corp., 450 Signal Companies and 25 Investment Co. of America. Should these be held or replaced with income securities? — T.S.

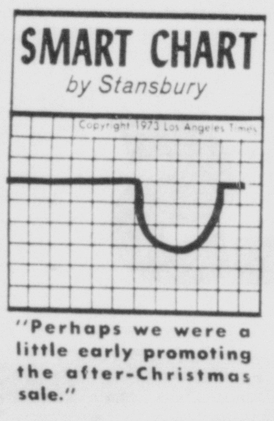

A. Your portfolio, worth approximately $27,000, returns $515 annually from dividend income, a meager 1.9 per cent yield. In addition, $518 in capital gains have been distributed by the three funds and a 3 per cent stock dividend was paid by Signal. For the present I would advise exchanging the Dreyfus Fund shares for those of Dreyfus Special Income Fund. Because your other two funds have had an above-average performance since 1968, retention is advised, at least until your retirement is an accomplished fact.

At that time exchange of ICA for Washington Mutual Investors and National for Whitehall Fund should be considered. Exchanges of this type, from one fund to another under the same management company, are executed at net asset value plus a small service charge. The transaction is treated, for tax purposes, in the same manner as a sale and purchase and is not a tax-free exchange.

Signal has moved up 73 per cent from its June low benefiting from a jump in earnings, takeover attempts and a major oil discovery in the North Sea. I would take advantage of this opportunity to dispose of these shares. As a replacement equal dollar amounts of Central Maine Power (NYSE) and Norfolk & Western (NYSE) are recommended.

Q. We found the following stock certificates after my mother-in-law's death: Santa Maria Petroleum, common and preferred, Hamilton Petroleum and Western Natural Resources. How can we find if these shares issued in the 1930s have any value? — H.D.

A. Sorry that I can't shed any light on the possible worth of these securities.

Taxable Sales For Marin Show Increase

Taxable sales in Marin County for the second quarter of 1973 were up 21.5 per cent for a total of $129,091,000, according to a report released by William M. Bennett, chairman of the state Board of Equalization.

The inclusion of gasoline effective July of 1972 substantially enlarged the sales tax base. Excluding the sales of service stations, Marin's increase was 14.8 per cent.

Sales in principal cities of Marin were: San Rafael $56,456,000; Novato $13,781,000; Corte Madera $11,019,000, and Sausalito $9,833,000. Petaluma's taxable sales totalled $19,739.00.

AUTO INDUSTRY

Detroit Is Selling Other Things

By WILLIAM J. HAMPTON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

As important to the car companies as next year's sales figures is their work to promote the industry view on things like pollution laws, safety regulations and transportation policy.

In the past, Detroit was happy enough to build good will by conducting plant tours. General Motors, for example, hosts more than a million visitors to its U.S. facilities every year. Last summer's open house at the GM Technical Center in Warren, Mich., drew people from 40 states and 26 foreign countries.

Now car companies are taking the offensive, especially over air-pollution laws. Detroit argues that interim standards for 1975 go far enough to control emissions.

It wants Congress to change the Clean Air Act of 1970 to make the interim standards permanent and throw out tighter limits now in the statute.

The auto industry is very cautious by nature, so its mounting attack on the emission standards reflects plenty of confidence.

Bolstering Detroit's argument is a recent study by the prestigious National Academy of Sciences that urged a new look at the law and its goals. Even the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which carries out the act, now admits some of the limits imposed are unnecessarily strict.

But EPA cannot change the law. Congress can, so Detroit automakers have taken their cause directly into Senate hearing rooms.

"We believe it would be productive for Congress to commission a restudy," said Edward Cole, GM president, in a recent statement to the Senate's air and water pollution subcommittee.

"The need for such a decision is urgent. Soon it may be too late to take effective action."

Cole explained that if Congress waits too long, automakers will be forced to commit themselves to expensive pollution controls that may not be needed when the government acts.

Chrysler Corp. began in 1971 its own review of medical and scientific data about pollution from cars. John Riccardo, Chrysler president, explained what happened next in a statement to the Senate subcommittee earlier this year.

"We felt we were right and ought to speak up in the public interest," Riccardo told the senators. "We knew that our motives would surely be questioned and that we would be the target of severe criticism."

Chrysler mailed out pamphlets about the issue and ran newspaper ads showing data refuting the need for tougher laws. Results were just as Riccardo predicted.

"For our efforts," he said, "we have been accused of substituting public relations for performance, and of mounting a vast program of advertising to substitute for engineering work."

Ford, meanwhile, has opted for a subtler approach. It has held dozens of grass-roots meetings with community leaders around the U.S. The goal is to generate "honest doubts" about the Clean Air Act in hopes that public pressure on Congress will produce faster results.

"We don't ask the public to decide whether the standards should be changed," explained Will Scott, Ford vice-president for governmental affairs and planning. "That's up to the blue ribbon group that Congress should appoint to re-examine the law."

The low-pressure Ford approach includes a short speech by an upper-level executive and a question-and-answer period. Sessions spell out the history of Detroit's efforts to control auto pollution, noting the millions of dollars spent on research.

Ford's idea, shared by the rest of the auto industry, is to move Congress into a fresh look at the Clean Air Act before the statute's tough final emission limits take effect in 1976 and 1977.

Automakers are convinced that when that happens, the available scientific data will do the rest of the talking. From the industry's standpoint, the result still will be clean air, but at a lower cost to consumers.

Tape News Gives Market Real Boost

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, in a broad decline most of the day, went up like a shot on news today when President Nixon agreed to turn over his Watergate tapes for judicial review.

The breadth issues turned dramatically upward on the news. Earlier, there were more than a thousand declining issues as profit taking, concern over the collapse of the Middle East ceasefire, and the growing possibility of Nixon's impeachment weighed on much of the list.

But with one of these major market depressants seemingly lifted, advances narrowly overtook declines among the more than 1,787 issues traded.

Earlier in the session, the trading tone was dull in comparison to recent sessions. Investors appeared headed for the sidelines amid the uncertainties of the Middle East and discussions in Washington over the possible impeachment of Nixon. Volume became hectic, however, after Nixon's announcement broke at 2:28 p.m., totaling approximately 16,500,000 shares, compared with yesterday's 14,290,000 shares.

California Standard, Exxon and Texaco each fell at one point on the Big Board, reflecting disappointment over the collapse of the Middle East cease-fire. In addition, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Companies (OPEC) said Monday any cease-fire would not alter the decision to cut back by 5 per cent a month Arab oil production.

High Mark In Marin Building

The total value of permitted construction in Marin County for the first nine months of this year hit $101,641,109, as compared with $71,618,871 for the same period last year.

This is the first time since Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau began compiling these statistics in 1954 that the total has exceeded the $100 million mark in one calendar year. The previous high was $99,176,600 for the 1972 calendar year.

Contributing to this year's record construction are the $9.7 million Fireman's Fund data processing center at Lucas Valley Road and Highway 101; the $2.4 million McKeon Company's Courthouse Square project in downtown San Rafael, the $900,000 Niles office building in Corte Madera, and the various construction activity in Hamilton Industrial Park.

French Chamber Group Thursday

The Marin Concert Association will present the French Chamber Orchestra Thursday at 8:15 p.m. in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building, the opening performance of the 1973-74 concert series.

Founded in 1965 by the first violinist and leader, Jean-Peierre Wallez, the group of 12 musicians has performed in Paris, Italy and Latin America as well as at festivals such as Spoleto and Aix-en-Provence.

The ensemble has made several recordings and their record of four Vivaldi concerti won the Grand Prix International du Disque in 1970. Yehudi Menuhin, Isaac Stern, David and Igor Oistrakh and Gerald Souzay are among the artists who have appeared with the chamber orchestra as soloists.

JEAN-PIERRE WALLEZ
Marin appearance

Wallez, winner of numerous international violin competitions, has appeared in recital in Italy, Tunisita, Spain, Belgium, England and France. He has played with Menuhin, Henry Szeryng and David and Igor Oistrakh.

Other concerts to be presented this year include contralto Marvellee Cariage, Nov. 19; Spanish guitarists, the Romero Quartet, Jan. 7; pianist Mack McCray, Feb. 20, and the 37-member company of dancers, jugglers, acrobats and musicians in the Carnival de Mexico on March 26.

Membership in the Marin Concert Association is limited to the seating capacity of the auditorium. Those interested in joining may contact Ben Farlatti of Tiburon, association president; Esther Dearth of Greenbrae; Ann Wylie of Mill Valley or Joe Mulasky of Fairfax.

COLLEGE TALK — Donald Whitton, authority on the life of artist Percy Gray, Whitton's great-uncle, will discuss Gray in a talk sponsored by the Marin Conservation League. The lecture will be at 8 p.m. Nov. 2 in Olney Hall at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

Children's Series Will Open Season

The Children's Concert Series will start the season for the Marin Symphony Association with a "sit-in" concert Saturday at Ross School. The program will include music from Haydn's "Toy Symphony," and "Pop Goes the Weasel," played by the Marin Youth Orchestra.

The "sit-in" allows children to sit in the middle of the orchestra while the music is being played. Hugo Rinaldi will conduct the series of three concerts.

Halloween Frolic Scheduled Oct. 31

The Greenbrae Property Owners Association's Halloween frolic will begin with a parade at 5:30 p.m., Oct. 31, from Eliseo Drive and Via La Cumbre to the Greenbrae School.

Prizes for the best costumes will be awarded to children up to 9 years old, according to Lester Wade, chairman. Free hotdogs, cider and doughnuts will be served.

Marinite Will Sing Verdi Role

Mezzo-soprano Arlene Adams of Lagunitas will sing the role of Leonora in Verdi's "Il Trovatore" when the West Bay Opera Association opens its season Friday in the Palo Alto Community Theater.

Miss Adams also has performed at the Iverness Music Festival and has been a member of the San Francisco Opera chorus.

Barbershop Concert To Be Saturday

The Golden Gate Chorus of barbershop singers will present its annual show at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Sponsor of the event is the Marin Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, according to Maury Carlson of Terra Linda, chapter president.

Carlson added that auditions for more barbershop bathtub singers to join the chorus will be held at 8 p.m. Oct. 30 in San Clemente School, Corte Madera.

The Golden Gate Chorus meets each Tuesday in the school and performs to raise funds for Marin County charities and for a children's speech defect center in Kansas, Carlson said.

Two Concerts Set At College

A concert featuring Bohemian composers' works for violin and keyboard will be played Friday and Saturday at the College of Marin by Charles Meachan, violin; Robaline Meacham, piano and harpsichord, and Susan Carp, violincello.

The trio will play works by Von Biber, Dvorak, Janacek and others.

The concerts will be at 8:30 p.m. each day in the choral hall of the fine arts building on the Kentfield campus. Ticket sale proceeds will assist the music scholarship fund.

HAWAIIAN LANDS — Persons of Hawaiian ancestry like the surfers on this Hawaiian beach, could share millions of dollars in compensation if Congress goes along with current efforts to pay natives for land taken from them without payment.

Land Return To Hawaiians Sought

By GERALD LOPEZ
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

HONOLULU — Aloha now has a new sound to it for Hawaiian natives.

In its newest form, ALOHA is an acronym for Aboriginal Lands of Hawaiian Ancestry and is the label of an effort to compensate aborigines for lands they lost since the days of Hawaiian royalty and land acquisitions by early New England traders and religious groups.

If Congress agrees with researchers for the Library of Congress, persons of Hawaiian ancestry could share millions of dollars in compensation for lands taken from them before 1893.

In a study made at the request of Sen. Daniel K. Inouye D-Hawaii, researchers say there are a number of similarities between the successful claims of the Alaskan aborigines and pending claims of Hawaiians.

Alaskan aborigines have been awarded 40 million acres and $950 million to compensate them for property taken by the United States when Alaska was purchased from Russia in 1867.

Former Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who was instrumental in the Alaska reparations case, is representing ALOHA in Washington.

He said he was hopeful 30 or 40 U.S. senators would cosponsor a bill next year to compensate Hawaiians. He said he would be "very disappointed" if Congress was not as "generous as it was with Alaska" in making reparations.

Senator Inouye, while terming the report "not conclusive," said "it does suggest that native Hawaiians, like native Alaskans, have some residual right to some form of compensation."

In essence the Library of Congress report says:

Alaska was acquired by the United States without the consent of its native population, whereas Hawaii was ceded to this country by the revolutionaries of 1893 without the consent of the Hawaiians.

As in Alaska, Hawaiians never were compensated for land turned over to the federal government after annexation. "... Lands used and occupied by Hawaiian natives for centuries ... now are owned and used by the U.S. Government."

Charles Maxwell, state president of ALOHA, which claims 12,000 members, said it would be premature to say what land would be claimed in the proposed legislation, but said the Island of Kahoolawe would be included.

Kahoolawe was taken from its owners in World War II to be used by the military for bombing practice. It has not been returned.

The Alaska bill provided that land and/or money could go only to those natives who could prove one-quarter or more of aborigine blood.

ALOHA says that because Hawaiians have intermarried with other ethnic groups more than Alaska natives, ALOHA may seek a lower percentage of aborigine blood for Island claimants.

The Library of Congress report traced the history of land on Hawaii from the time of King Kamehameha the Great.

When Kamehameha unified the Islands in 1795, he decreed himself the sole owner of Hawaii and gave his chiefs control of large tracts but did not deed the land to them in fee.

During the Great Mahele (land division) of 1848, Kamehameha III divided the land among himself, the chiefs, and the government. After 1850, tenants who lived on the lands owned by chiefs were allowed to claim in fee those plots they had cultivated.

Out of the 1.5 million acres given by the King to the government and the people, fewer than 30,000 acres were awarded to native tenants.

But the Republic of Hawaii, a government created by revolutionaries without the consent of the natives, ruled that all such property should revert to the government.

The federal government retains title to about 396,000 of the more than 4.1 million acres of land in Hawaii.

Ruckelshaus' Wife Will Stay On Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Jill Ruckelshaus says she has decided to stay on in her White House job even though her husband, former Deputy Attorney General William D. Ruckelshaus, quit in the Watergate tapes dispute.

Mrs. Ruckelshaus decided to remain in her part time position on the staff of White House Counselor Anne Armstrong at the strong persuasion of Mrs. Armstrong. Mrs. Ruckelshaus is an adviser on women's affairs and one of the Republican Party's main champions of women's rights.

Gusting Winds Tatter Building

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gusting 45 mile-per-hour winds ripped sheet metal and wooden planks from the top of a 30-story unfinished skyscraper near City Hall last night, forcing police to cordon off a six-block area.

Large sections of sheet metal that hadn't been welded to the steel girders could be heard for blocks clanging through open parts of the building's interior.

Pedestrians and traffic were detoured from the area after some construction debris smashed into the streets below. There were no reports of damage or injury.

Despite the gale force winds and a driving rain, construction experts went to the top of the unprotected building and lashed down the loose material.
